3 GUNMEN GET $35,000 LOOT IN YOUNGSTOWN

Menace 20 Railway Express Agency Employes, Scoop Up Money Bags.

ENTER WITH GUNS DRAWN

Bandits Herd Office Workers Into Warehouse; Miss Large Sack of Currency.

(By Associated Press)

YOUNGSTOWN—Three armed bandits held up 20 employes in the railway express agency on the edge of the business district here today and escaped with approximately $35,000 consigned by a Youngstown bank to the federal reserve bank in Cleveland.

The three bandits entered the main office door but separated immediately.

Herded Into Warehouse.

While one bandit drew his pistol and ordered office employes into the warehouse, another herded warehousemen at the point of a sawed off shotgun. The third bandit went to the rear and herded in a group of truck drivers.

Employes were lined up facing a wall while the shotgun bandit watched them. One of the other bandits entered the money room and covered H. T. Harris, in charge of the money bags, before he had time to draw his own gun.

The bandits missed one large bag of currency, J. C. Murray, general agent said.

Believed He Was Guard.

Murray said he was standing in the rear loading platform and saw a man walk in with a gun.

"I thought he was a bank guard," said Murray, "so I said 'hello.' The bandit, his hands shaking nervously, shouted: 'Stand still, here.'"

G. W. Stover, an officer of the agency, said the night turn had just ended their tour of duty and had taken off their guns. The day men had not yet strapped on their weapons.

The bandits wrecked their car on a Division street bridge, smashing into a guard rail. They held up the first passing motorist, Joe Carso, and sped southward in his coupe.

Police said the wrecked car had two sets of license plates, the outer set strapped on with rubber bands over the original. The original plates were issued to a man who is said to have a criminal record, Detective Chief William Reed said.

The $35,000 lost was in $1 bills.

Mayor Renames Pierce and Stough to City Boards.

The re-appointment of John Pierce as a sinking fund trustee and Carl E. Stough to the recreation board, announced today by Mayor Claude M. Hunter, leaves the political complexion of both boards unchanged.

Pierce, who completes a four-year term tomorrow as a trustee of the sinking fund, was first appointed by former Mayor Charles M. Lantz. Stough whose term on the recreation commission also expires tomorrow, was named by Mayor Hunter early this year to serve the unexpired term of C. R. Ross who resigned when he moved from the city. Both are Democrats.

Other members of the sinking fund trustees are William Springer, a Democrat, and George B. Garrison and W. B. Crider, Republicans.

Floyd Dent is the other Democratic member of the recreation board, while W. C. Mead, H. W. Arlin and P. R. Tappan are the Republicans.

COLD 'RIDING' ON SCHEDULE

Sweeps Toward City From Midwest, Near Zero Weather Expected Tonight.

The "second section" of a cold wave that government weather observers predicted would strike Mansfield late Friday or Saturday from the northwest was "riding" on schedule today.

Reports from the middle west said the cold was moving ponderously eastward. The new wave is expected to be of short duration, but even more severe while it lasts than the first, with the air already chilled.

A slow decline in the temperature was expected in Ohio this afternoon and tonight as the new frigid blast settles over the state. The blustery gales that accompanied the post-Christmas cold will be missing.

The state forecast predicted partly cloudy weather tonight and Saturday with temperatures between 5 and 10 degrees above zero tonight. The low mark in Mansfield in the last 24 hours was 16 above early today. At noon the reading was 27.

Light snow which fell late yesterday made highways slippery and at least five persons died in Ohio in traffic crashes or from exposure.

The new cold wave blanketed the midwest with snow and subnormal mercury readings today. At Chicago the weather bureau predicted a fall to zero in the city for the first time in three years.

The temperature plunged from 20 to 10 degrees overnight in Detroit and was expected to go down to 6 degrees under cloudless skies.

POLICE TRAP TRIO GAMBLING CLUB ROOMS

Arrest Three Youths, Capture Lookout Who Deserted Post After Short Chase.

ALL HELD TO GRAND JURY

Open Window Proves Undoing of Suspects as Officers Pass by Club Quarters.

A youthful "lookout" who deserted his pals, only to be captured by police as he attempted to flee in an automobile was responsible for the arrest of three other youths as they burglarized the Sons of Herman club at Orange street and Central avenue early today.

He is Richard Roser, 18, R. D. 2, Mansfield, captured by Capt. Jesse Schwab and Patrolman William Lemmons on Fourth avenue, less than four blocks from the club, after the officers had taken the other three into custody.

Three In Building.

The three found in the building were Jacob Morganstine, 20, of 380 Newman street, his brother, John 18, and Wendall Graszl, 19, of R. D. 4, Mansfield, the officers said.

All four were held in the county jail today under bonds of $1,500 each, awaiting jury action, Roser on a charge of aiding and abetting in the burglary and the other three on charge of breaking and entering.

Arraigned in municipal court this morning all four pleaded guilty and were bound to the grand jury.

The youths were captured by the officers at 2:30 a. m. while they were making a routine round in a cruiser, and noted a basement window broken as they passed the building.

Lemmons went to the front of the building to "cover" that entrance while Capt. Schwab went to the window, the officers related today.

'Come Out or . . .

Schwab said he heard pounding within the club. Drawing his service revolver, he ordered the youths to "come out or we're coming in after you."

He said the three meekly crawled out through the window which they had broken only a few minutes before. None were armed.

The officers returned to the club after taking the four to jail and said they found a music box in the clubroom broken open and looted of 28 cents.

After they had booked the three youths, the officers inquired where

HELD IN THEFTS

Man Jailed at Akron in Chicken Stealing Investigation.

A 54-year-old former Richland countian was held today in the Ashland county jail in connection with a series of thefts of chickens, calves and cured meat from farms in Richland and Ashland counties.

The suspect was arrested yesterday in Akron by Sheriff Dale Hammond of Ashland county who had been investigating the thefts with Sheriff E. P. Long of Richland county.

Authorities said the suspect, who formerly lived near Lucas where a number of chickens were stolen, owns an automobile with tires which could have left the tracks found near the scene of two of the thefts.

Included in the loot were chickens, two calves, one of which was butchered on a farm in Worthington township, and a number of hams and slabs of bacon from smokehouses.

JAILED IN WPA PAYROLL FRAUD

Timekeeper on Project Here Charged With Falsifying Records of Employes.

Forrest L. Thompson, 26½ East First street, timekeeper on the Richland county WPA road project, was in the Cuyahoga county jail today awaiting federal grand jury action on a charge of falsifying WPA reports.

Thompson was taken to Cleveland by a U. S. deputy marshal after he pleaded guilty to the charges before U. S. Commissioner Charles Ball at Canton. Bond was fixed at $1,500.

Charges against the timekeeper were filed by Wayne Sanders, special field agent of the WPA division of investigation who accused Thompson with padding the federal payroll.

WPA officials in Columbus said the alleged "padding" was discovered early in December when a district timekeeper checking the Richland county records of the road project found "certain" irregularities.

District WPA Director J. L. Kelley pointed out the irregularities prompted an investigation of the records in Mansfield by the WPA division of investigation and

The girl, a seventh-grade pupil whom County Attorney Ray Smith discribed in a report as pretty, blue-eyed and "unusually intelligent," was placed in jail on a delinquency charge.

The judge said the grandmother, Mrs. Mary Hampton, 56, was in a critical condition in a hospital at nearby Corbin, Ky., but was given a chance to survive.

Joke In French Mags Results In Diplomatic Break

PARIS —(U.P.)— Iran (Persia) broke off diplomatic relations with France today because of a joke about a cat.

Two years ago a French humorous weekly published a joke that the point of which was a play on the similarity of the words shah, for the Shah of Persia, and chat, which is French for cat.

The shah was made angry and threatened then to sever relations. However, the incident blew over and all was well until the foreign office was notified last night by its minister to Teheran that relations were broken.

It appeared that when the annual cat show was held in Paris recently, magazines reprinted the shah-chat joke, and copies of the magazine had reached Teheran—and the shah—by air mail.

6 DIE IN BLAZE

Mother, 5 Children Perish as Flames Destroy Home.

WINNIPEG, Man. — (U.P.)—Mrs. Lyle Robson and five of her children burned to death last night in a fire which swept through their home in an impoverished section of St. James, a suburb.

Her husband was near death from burns and injuries suffered when he leaped from a second floor window. The only member of the family to escape uninjured was Stanley, 12.

Firemen believed the fire was started by an overheated stove in 28 below zero weather.

Firemen said positions of the bodies indicated that four of the children had been overcome in their sleep and that the mother had attempted to carry one of the youngest children to safety. Her body, the child in her arms, was found in a bathroom.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Border—Further advances were scored by Generalissimo Francisco Franco's insurgent forces on the blood-soaked Balaguer sector of the Catalan battle front today.

A government communique from Barcelona admitted the insurgents had scored successes on this front, but claimed the government troops had inflicted "thousands" of losses upon the insurgent troops in earlier fighting around Balaguer.

Meanwhile, it was believed the British government would lodge a stiff protest against the bombing of the British steamer Marionga, which was attacked off the Spanish coast between Castellon De La Plana and the Balearic islands.

It was reported the vessel was badly damaged and the crew forced to take to lifeboats. Number of casualties was not known.

Meanwhile, the Catalan offensive launched by the insurgents had entered its eighth day with the Franco legions claiming to have broken through the government lines at the Balaguer bridgehead

$8,500 Left For Relief As '38 Ends

City Faces Real Problem In Finding $100,000 For 1939 Needs.

Mansfield will wind up 1939 with a balance of $8,500 in its relief fund but where it will find an additional $100,000 to meet direct aid needs in 1939 will be a problem, City Auditor Paul L. Kelley said today.

There was a balance of $16,000 in the relief fund Dec. 1, but with December expenditures estimated at $7,500, the balance Jan. 1 will be approximately $8,500, Kelley said.

During the nine and one half months the city has administered relief, receipts, including all revenue from the state totaled $111,500. Expenditures during the same period will amount to $103,000.

Cost of direct relief, Kelley said, would total $92,532 while administrative expenses will amount to $10,468, or an average of 10.5 per cent during the period. This is 4½ per cent under the state maximum of 15 per cent allowed for administration.

Hits Low In October.

Kelley's figures showed that direct relief costs which stood at approximately $12,000 a month when the burden was turned over to the city last March had been reduced steadily to a low of $6,100 in October.

In the past two months, however, the monthly costs have shown an increase to the $7,500 estimated to be spent this month.

Kelley gave as the chief factor in the reduction, the re-registration of relief clients under the new state law which has reduced the number of cases from a high of 1,139 last March to a new low of 553 as of Dec. 1.

The case load and direct relief costs by months follows:

March—half month, 1,139 cases, $6,663; April—1,091 cases, $11,856; May—1,069 cases, $11,452; June—1,018 cases, $12,011; July—972 cases, $11,834; August—947 cases, $10,246; September — 789 cases, $7,589; October—627 cases, $6,143; November—553 cases, $7,268; December (estimated) $7,500.

LEVIES IN COMMITTEE

Governor's Supporters Out to Muster Votes to OK Leasure in Job Law Position.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Gov. Martin L. Davey's nomination of Clarence H. Knisely to succeed Thomas M. Gregory on the state industrial commission was confirmed by the senate today, 20 to 0. A battled loomed over reappointment of Charles Leasure to the unemployment compensation commission. After acting on Knisely's nomination the senate adjourned until 2 p. m.

COLUMBUS — The house of representatives recessed until 2:30 p. m. after introduction of two bills calling for re-enactment of the liquid fuel and cigaret excise taxes.

The bills were designed to close the gap in the two taxes which would occur should they be allowed to lapse at midnight tomorrow. It was pointed out that there would be a two-day interval before the incoming general assembly could act to renew the laws.

Go to Committee.

The cigaret excise tax bill was put in the hopper by Rep. Carl F. Wintzer (D., Auglaize), and the liquid fuel measure by Rep. W. F. Sheely (D., Ross). The cigaret tax bill would extend the levy indefinitely.

The house also received a message from Governor Martin L. Davey which recommended that the first $24,000,000 from sales tax receipts should be definitely set aside for the public school fund.

It was ostensibly for the purpose of solving the school fund problem that the legislature was recalled for the two-day session, although Davey's chief interest was in obtaining senate confirmation of two appointments—those of Clarence H. Knisely, retiring treasurer to the industrial commission and Charles H. Leasure to a six-year

Warm Welcome Assured City's First 1939 Baby

Mansfield's No. 1 baby of 1939 will be given a warm and hospitable greeting when it makes its "world premiere" after the stroke of midnight Saturday, for Mansfield merchants will follow the "first baby" tradition and will present a shower of gifts for the baby and its parents.

There are only two conditions governing the annual stork race—it must be established beyond a doubt that it IS the first baby of the New Year, and it must be a bonafide Mansfield product, its parents Mansfield people and the baby born within the corporation limits of the city.

For the baby there will be a week's supply of grade A milk from the Page Dairy company; a large photograph of the baby (when it is old enough to be "shot" by the camera) by Headley-Perez; a supply of accredited baby food from the Park grocery; a pin-up lamp for the nursery from the Ohio Public Service company, and a wool baby blanket from the John S. Jones company.

The parents will fare even better than the baby for there will be a ton of coal from the Estes Coal company; eight theater tickets from the Park theater; a Silex coffee maker from the Ohio Fuel Gas company; free laundry work from Calvert laundry, and the John S. Jones company will take the mother and baby home from the hospital (if the baby is born there) in the Jones invalid coach.

'No Meal Too Big For Me Now,' Says Well Known Local Man

Retired farmer says before taking Vendol even light foods upset stomach causing gas, bloating, sourness, and other troubles.

MR. LEDOM L. OYSTER

The most grateful people, and those who praise Vendol the highest, are those men and women who hadn't been enjoying their meals because they couldn't eat without suffering later. This was the experience of Mr. Ledom L. Oyster, a well known retired farmer residing at 5 Durham Ave., Mansfield, who recently gave the following account of relief to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & Fourth Sts. He says:

"For years a bad case of constipation forced me to take a laxative almost every night, and even at that my bowel movements were never really thorough. Here of late this made my digestion go back on me. Regardless of how careful I was in the selection of my foods, I was bound to suffer with indigestion, sourness, smothering gas acid risings, and a terribly bloated feeling. This upset stomach condition brought on other troubles too. I would have such dizzy spells I could hardly walk without staggering and my head seemed

DID YOU know that it was really news when Bill Dorsey, Manhattan football player finished his gridiron career this fall? Before going to Manhattan, he was a freshman at Ohio State, Pittsburgh and a plebe at West Point.

That St. Francis college has a basketball lineup consisting of Dzenkewicz, Ptak, Lenowicz, Gwiazda and Hrbek? No wonder printers complain.

That when Lou Gerhig batted only .295 last season he reverted to the exact average of 1925, his first in the big leagues and the only other year in which he batted under .300?

DISCOUNTS MAJOR'S TALK OF SPRINGING AIR ATTACK

MIAMI, Fla.—(U.P.)—The experts agreed today that if Tennessee's sudden interest in passing was anything more than a bit of coaching hokum, Oklahoma would be one of the most surprised teams ever to set foot in the Orange Bowl.

They discounted Major Bob Neyland's talk of filling the air with passes "to balance our offense and offset Oklahoma's weight advantage," for his greatest weapon this season was a running attack that averaged five yards per try for a total of 2,283 yards. "With a running attack like theirs, I don't see why they should have to start throwing passes," said Tom Stidham, Oklahoma coach.

Vines Will Quit Tennis If Don Budge Beats Him.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Financially fixed for life, even if he never lifts another tennis racket, Ellsworth Vines intends to quit the professional game for good and devote himself to golf if Don Budge beats him conclusively in their long series of exhibition matches starting Tuesday night at Madison Square Garden.

"Shucks," said Elly, "I've made enough money out of this game and I don't need to hang around after I've passed my peak and take a licking from anybody. Not like Bill Tilden's done. I love golf now more than I ever loved tennis."

Butler, Plymouth Quintets Set Fast Scoring Pace on Cage Courts.

RICHLAND county boasts of two point-a-minute high school quintets as the year of 1938 fades from the picture.

The high-scoring combines are the undefeated Butler and Plymouth clubs, which have played seven and six games, respectively.

League Favorites.

Whether these two teams can keep up their present scoring gait after the holiday vacation when they return to action remains to be seen, but both promise to stay in the thick of the fights in their respective leagues.

Butler, at present, is tied with Madison for the county league leadership, while Plymouth is setting the pace in the Twin-Valley league, which includes two other county teams, Shiloh and Adario.

The Bulldogs have tallied 238 points in seven games, which gives them 14 points over the point-a-minute average. The Tigers of Plymouth had accumulated 197 points in one less game, or five points above a 32-points-per-game average.

Strange to say, Mansfield, with only two victories in five games, is just eight points short of a point-a-minute average, while Lucas, with a .500 percentage, is only six points away from the average.

Union, which has won five out of eight games, boasts the best defensive record. The Indians have permitted an average of only 16.8 points per game. Plymouth follows with a 17.7 defensive mark, with Shiloh next with 18 points.

Ward Sets Pace.

Wendall Ward, Butler forward, continues to set the individual pace in the county with 81 points, compiled from 33 field goals and 15 free throws. Leroy Ellison of Plymouth follows with 71 points. Tom Greulich of Lucas is third with 66.

The records of games played to date follow:

GRID CHIEF AIMS FOR GAME IN EVERY PARK

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A professional football team in every baseball park in the country! That's the ultimate goal of a program mapped today by Joe F. Carr, founder and president of the National Football league, and promotional director of the minor baseball leagues.

"We have 37 minor baseball leagues- we'll have about 40 in 1939—which condition young and inexperienced players for the majors," Carr said. "There's no reason why we shouldn't have the same for football, with the players winning their way up the ladder to berths on the National league clubs."

Simmons Accepts Boston Bee Offer

BOSTON—(AP)—Although Al Simmons was "surprised" when he was waived out of the American league by Washington, he lost little time accepting the Boston Bees' 1939 salary offer by telephone from Hot Springs, Ark., where he is getting in some winter workouts.

Simmons, who twice led American league batters during his 14 years in that circuit, was sold to Chicago in 1932 for $100,000. The Bees are reported to have paid Washington $3,000 for him. Quinn refused, however, to confirm it.

The Blue Goose Sohioans dropped their second game of the season to the Musille Cigars, 35 to 30, but retained second place. The Sohioans led 18 to 15 at the half, but the Cigars grabbed a two-point lead in the third period that it held the rest of the way.

Willard Lockhart of the Sohioans was the high point man of the contest with 16 points. Boyd and Hoffman, with 13 and 11 points, respectively, paced the Cigars.

The Miller Dairys jumped into a 10 to 1 lead in the first period as it turned back the Raemelton Farm, 23 to 19, in the other game. Moritz paced the Dairys with 10 points. K. Hardin tallied seven for the losers.

FOOTBALL FATALITIES REACH ALL-TIME LOW

CHICAGO — (INS)—Football fatalities reached a new all time low during the 1938 season, the National Football Coaches association and N. C. A. A. were told today by Dr. Floyd R. Eastwood of the Purdue department of physical education for men.

Only seventeen deaths directly attributable to football were reported in Dr. Eastwood's survey. This was a reduction of 48.4 per cent since the peak year of 1931. Of those fatalities only two were in colleges. There were four on sand lots, three among athletic club teams and eight in high schools.

EX-MIAMI COACH FINDS DIFFERENT TYPE OF GAME

KNOXVILLE, Tenn—(AP)—The south is playing "copy-book" basketball that is widely divergent from the wide-open style of play in the north, Coach Johnny Mauer of Tennessee observed today.

"The difference is in officiating," said Mauer. "Down here the officials don't allow bodily contact. They call 'em by the book. Basketball is supposed to be a no-contact game, you know. Mauer came to Tennessee this fall from Miami University at Oxford.

Kinkade, Lore to Bolster College Frosh Quintet for Game at 7 P. M.

PROBABLE LINEUPS

City League.		Freshmen.
Poole	F	Lore
Stickler	F	Kinkade
Farrell	C	Bollantz
Hayfer	G	Morgan
Miner	G	Hallabrin

STARS that shine in the City Class A league assemble tonight to meet an all-star Ohio college freshmen team in one of the final basketball games of the old year at Mansfield high school at 7 o'clock.

The game will be presented at the early hour because of a student dance scheduled in the gymnasium tonight.

The freshmen lineup will include players from Ohio State, Ohio Wesleyan, Wittenberg, Kent State and DePauw university, an Indiana school.

Among the players the freshmen will feature are Tom Kinkade, Ohio State frosh basketball and football star, and Eddie Lore of Ohio Wesleyan, late of Mt. Vernon high.

Kinkade was the heaviest publicized player in the state last season as he won the Ohio scholastic scoring title. He was also placed on the all-Ohio five.

Lore established a new scoring record in the N. C. O. conference last year, and is regarded as one of the finest freshman prospects at the Delaware school this season.

Buddy Mercer of Newark, who was named to the All-Ohio tournament team last spring, was scheduled to appear, but Noel Morgan, who assembled the freshman team, was notified today he will be unable to play due to death in the family.

His place in the lineup will be taken by Ed Chatlain, who is a former Mansfield high star as are Bill Boliantz of Kent State, Russell Hoff and Morgan of Ohio Wesleyan, John Hallabrin of Ohio State and Bob Spear of DePauw. Hallabrin was the mainstay of last season's Mansfield high quintet which reached the state finals.

Play With All-Stars.

The City league team's lineup will include Al Stickler, Freddy Lewis and Harold Hayfer of the Yuncker Sports, Delnore Goldsmith and Gene Brandon of the Herrick Hi-Speeds, Howard Foole and Bob Shade of the Westinghouse Electrics and Tom Farrell and Johnny Miner of the Elks.

Bottom Drops Out of Bowl Ducat Market

Speculators May Hold Bag at Pasadena.

PASADENA, Calif.—(AP)—So far as the scalpers are concerned, the bottom apparently had dropped out of the Rose Bowl ticket market today.

Some of the best seats in the blossom-festooned stadium where Southern California and Duke clash Monday in the 33rd annual grid game were available for a small premium. And the possibility was not at all remote that some of the speculators would have to unload at par or less before the contest.

A numbe of circumstances have contributed to this situation, and perhaps not the least of these is a growing belief that these two powerful defensive elevens may spend the afternoon keeping crowd-pleasing offensive pyrotechnics smothered.

Other factors responsible for the adamant attitude of the paying public include the annually discouraging fact that few outsiders can get their hands on the brilliantly tinted pasteboards through the regular channels and the competitive presence of thundering thoroughbreds at Santa Anita track, across town.

The Year in Review—

JAPAN SEIZES CHINA'S CHICAGO AS WAR GOES ON

Bombs Burst in Holy Land as Arabs and Jews Clash; Business Picks Up.

By VOLTA TORREY.
(AP Feature Service Writer)

Chapter 10 Of a Month-by-Month Review Of 1938

By October this year folks said "could be!" of almost anything. Orson Welles' broadcast of a Martian invasion of New Jersey scared scads of citizens into an emotional floy-floy.

Germany, Hungary and Poland were chawing chunks off Czechoslovakia. Alfred Duff Cooper, unable to swallow the Munich peace, quit Britain's cabinet—but London barbers said Hitler mustaches were becoming fashionable. Russians called Col Lindbergh a liar and nazi lackey; Germans decorated him. Viennese threw stones and flying glass cut Theodore Cardinal Innitzer. The Pope told a New Orleans eucharistic congress he scarcely could refrain from a tear when he beheld "the eternal majesty of God himself set aside and outraged."

Flowers for Master.

And in The New York Herald Tribune, Helen Frith Stickney wrote of a bouquet tossed at 1938's Napoleon during his triumphal tour of Sudetenland:

Heil to the queenliest flower that grows—
And ah, how worthy of her place!
Only a laudatory rose
Has dared to scratch the Fuehrer's face!

"Hellzapoppin," to the critics' chagrin, became Broadway's first fall wow. Its title fit the times: Bombs burst in the Holy Land and Jerusalem's exiled Grand Mufti demanded freedom for Arabs and a "keep out" sign for Jews.

Japan took China's "old Chicago"—Hankow, Canton, metropolis of South China, fell, too, despite yarns that ubiquitious guerrillas were teaching orangoutangs to flip hand grenades, and Tokyo went on slamming the well known "open door" despite America's squawk. U. S. Elder Statesman Bernard Baruch saw a "real and immediate" threat to Uncle Sam in South America, and President Roosevelt began re-examining the nation's arms to be sure they'd be strong enough to bar an aggressor from the western hemisphere.

Men Talking.

Tom, Dick and Harry helped soldiers spot bombers in Fort Bragg, N. C., maneuvers. Gotham's German spy trial began. The President derided Rep. Martin Dies' un-American inquiry. Dies and Labor Secretary Perkins bickered about deportation action against CIO's Harry Bridges. British Lecturer John Strachey was detained at Ellis Island. CIO got an injunction against Jersey city's Mayor Hague.

John L. Lewis said he'd quit his job if William Green would step out of AFL. Homer Martin and Henry Ford shook hands. San Francisco's 105-day warehouse labor row was settled. A New York strike forced the Queen Mary to dock without aid of tugs. The railroad strike scheduled for Oct. 1 was averted by appointment of three fact-finders.

Wages and Hours.

Auto factories called men back to work. And amidst lay-offs and a deluge of inquiries and argument, the new wage-hour law administered by Elmer F. Andrews went into effect.

A German passenger ship caught fire, but reached port safely. Ruth Etting's second man was shot and her first husband, "Col. Gimp" Martin Snyder, was jailed. And a North Carolina jail-keeper's daughter was locked up for letting a smooth-talking 19-year-old burglar escape.

The Yanks won the World Series. First prize in the Carnegie International Art Show went to Karl Hofer's "The Wind." Scholars resumed the Shakespeare-or-Bacon feud. Girls bought hats like the organ-grinders' monkey used to wear, and grown-ups sang "Stop Beating Around the Mulberry Bush." Never, said Surgeon General Parren, had the American people been healthier.

Church of Nativity In Center of War

The Church of the Nativity becomes the centerpiece for a war scene as British Tommies stand guard in Bethlehem after putting down Arabian disorders. Arab cafe at left was dynamited by British.

RAILS RESUME CLIMB DURING PROFIT TAKING

Post Plus Marks as Market Analysts Find Cheer in Trade Reviews.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—(AP)—Rails continued to edge forward in today's stock market, but profit taking handicapped many of yesterday's strong leaders.

Able to post small plus marks were Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, Woolworth, Loew's, Consolidated Edison and Western Union.

Slightly in arrears were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Sperry, Bendix and Westinghouse.

Railbonds pointed higher in the loans department. Major commodities tilted moderately upward. American stocks exhibited strength in European markets.

Market analysts found a few favorable signs in week-end trade reviews.

Dun & Bradstreet said that, while final figures on the Christmas shopping season indicated a drop of about 2 per cent for the country as a whole compared with the like 1937 period, most retailers thought the totals encouraging in view of the slow start of buying this year, the smaller unit sales and lower price average.

Post-Christmas business, it was added, took a decided turn for the better, with results for the current week estimated at 1 to 4 per cent ahead of the concluding week a year ago.

Not so pleasing was the continued contraction in commercial loans as reported by federal reserve member banks.

FRANCO SCORES NEW SUCCESSES

and to have pierced the Barcelona defenses at four other points. At least 500,000 men were estimated engaged in the battle, one of the greatest of the entire civil war.

Advices from Burgos said the insurgents smashed through the government lines at the Balaguer bridgehead and that government communications between Balaguer and Cervera had been ruptured by a "most important victory."

In addition, the Franco forces claimed to have captured Granadella, taking many prisoners and capturing at least 100 government defenders of the town. The insurgents were said to be forming a new line of battle as they moved forward to the east on both the northern and southern sectors of the Catalan front, which extends about 100 miles.

Government troops defending the left bank of the river Segre, according to the Burgos statement raised the white flag of surrender when insurgent infantry units charged following a terrific artillery barrage. Northeast of Balaguer, the insurgents claimed to have taken the villages of Covent and Argentera and to have surrounded the town of Baldoma.

In the southern district, driving toward Terragona, the insurgents asserted they had cut the road between Albages and Castelldans.

BANKS PAY UP

Ohio Liquidations Result in Payments of 75 Per Cent.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Samuel H. Squire, state superintendent of banks, reported today that during the last four years depositors of closed Ohio banks received liquidating dividends totaling $26,900,000, or an average of more than 75 per cent of original deposits.

A 1935-38 survey showed that liquidation work had been completed in 146 banks, with nine reopened for business; two sold, and 135 completely liquidated. Twenty-two remained in active liquidation at the close of this year.

In 45 of the liquidated banks, Squire reported, depositors received totals equal to or greater than their initial deposits. The highest payment, 111.3 per cent, was made by the West Lafayette Banking company in 1936.

TRUCKER JAILED

AKRON—(AP)—James Tweedy, 27, Atlanta, Ga., long-distance truck driver, was in custody here today. Detective Inspector Verne Cross said, on a fugitive warrant issued in connection with an Atlanta kidnaping charge.

A 15-year-old girl listed as Ruth Findley of Atlanta was held with Tweedy. The detective said he was told the girl's mother swore out the kidnaping warrant.

JAILED IN WPA PAYROLL FRAUD

Sanders was sent here to check Thompson's reports.

Kelley said that about 18 WPA workers were involved in the irregularities but added he did not know whether they will be prosecuted or ordered to refund the money.

Sanders charged that Thompson carried men on the payrolls as present on the job when they were absent from work and then had required the men to "split" their earnings with him.

The special agent said that between $400 and $500 was believed to have been paid workers for time that they did not work. Of this amount, Thompson's "cut," figured on a 50 per cent basis, would have totaled between $200 or $250.

Thompson was arrested yesterday and taken to Canton where he waived examination and the formal arraignment was held before Commissioner Ball this morning.

TRAP THREE IN CLUB QUARTERS

Police Arrest Youths, Capture Lookout Who Deserted Post After Brief Chase.

their automobile was, when a car flashed past the intersection and was pointed out by one of the trio.

"There it is now," officers quoted the youth.

A chase of three blocks ensued on the icy pavements and the driver was forced to the curb. The officers said Roser, who had been posted at the rear of the building as a lookout, was behind the wheel. He had parked the car on First avenue, a block from the club.

Roser told the officers that when he saw the cruiser stop he deserted his post without giving an alarm and ran to the car.

THEATERS

THERE will be no dearth of entertainment around Mansfield for the debut of the New Year, for in addition to a number of private dances and night club floor shows, Mansfield's five theaters will run midnight shows, several opening with new shows on Saturday and the Madison running a stage show.

Trio of Adventures.

One of the most dramatic pictures of silent films has been remade into a talking picture in "Dawn Patrol." This "man's picture" (there are no women in it) was made a number of years ago with Richard Barthelmess, Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and Neil Hamilton, and still is remembered as one of the greatest war pictures ever made. In the new version there are three equally dashing soldiers-of-fortune in the major roles—Errol Flynn, David Niven and Basil Rathbone. It is a story of the British Royal Flying Corps, and all three players are British, the last two having served in the English army during the war. The action takes place on the British front where the corps wages a daily fight against death in the sky. "Dawn Patrol" opens at the Ohio at 6 p. m. tomorrow and will be presented at a midnight show. It runs through Wednesday of next week.

"California Frontier."

There is no more colorful chapter in American history than that in which the Spaniards and Mexicans who pioneered southern California tried to hold on to their lands against the plundering of unscrupulous Americans. Some of this history is woven into "California Frontier," the Majestic attraction for Saturday and Sunday, including a midnight show New Year Eve. Buck Jones is the two-fisted hero of this action-filled picture drama. A quartet of masculine fun makers will be seen in "Swing Sister, Swing," a jitterbug comedy. Ken Murray, Ernest Truex, Eddie Quillen and Johnny Downs head the cast.

The Mad Marxes.

Park theater audiences will be given a menu of robust comedy as a New Year opener, for the Mad Marxes will be shown there in their latest comedy "Room Service," which is the film version of the roaring stage comedy. This is the story of a theatrical producer —none other than Groucho Marx —whose only hope for saving his show depends upon his remaining in his hotel room and the landlord remaining out. He is aided and abetted in his mad schemes by Harpo and Chico. The current bill of "Merry Go Round of 1938" and "FP 1 Doesn't Answer," will be shown through Saturday up to the new midnight show.

Laurel and Hardy.

Comedy of the "mad" variety is also on tap at the New Ritz where Laurel and Hardy's last comedy together, "Our Relations," will be featured on the Friday and Saturday bill, with a midnight show Saturday. The two daffy comedians confuse their audience more than ever by having twin brothers who look identically like them and who turn up at the right — or wrong—moment. Betty Healy and Daphne Pollard are seen as the two wives, with Iris Adrian and Lona Andre to give glamor. "Heart of Arizona" with William Boyd, another Hopalong Cassidy episode, will also be shown.

Madison to Wind Up '38 with 5-Act Vaudeville Show

Five acts of vaudeville and a screen presentation will bring a combination screen and stage show to the Madison Saturday and Sunday, with a midnight show for New Year Eve.

"High Jinks Revels of 1939" is headed by an act that has been seen in Mansfield on several occasions and everywhere that Barnum and Bailey and Ringling Brothers circuses have played. It is the famous Flying Cardovas, acrobatic stars who for many years headlined the biggest of the outdoor shows.

Bill Anson, famous imitator of stage, radio and screen stars is also in a stellar spot on the bill, coming to Mansfield from the Chicago theater where he played the Christmas bill.

Also from Chicago comes Jackson and Blackwell, comedy dancers. Kelso and Lee, juggling and comedy duo, who played Christmas shows at Radio City, New York City, are on the bill and the Callahan Sisters, in "Taps, Taps, Taps," round out the list of stars.

The screen entertainment will be "Blondie" with Penny Singleton and Arthur Lake.

WOMAN HURT IN ACCIDENT SUES

Asks $500 Damages as Result of Collision Nov. 3.

Action to collect $500 damages for injuries sustained in an automobile collision Nov. 3 was filed in municipal court today against John Donley, 61 Hedges street, by Mrs. Gladys Joseph, 242 South Adams street.

She seeks the damages for injuries which she says she received when an automobile in which she was riding with her husband figured in a collision with a machine operated by the defendant at the intersection of South Adams street and Home avenue.

SENT TO JAIL IN RELIEF CASE

Mother of Four, Convicted of 'Chiseling,' Begins 10-Day Sentence.

Mrs. Edith Jacobs, 86 East Fourth street, found guilty in municipal court last week on a charge of misrepresentation in her application for relief, today began a 10-day sentence in county jail.

Mrs. Jacobs was taken to jail yesterday after Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch gave her a 60-day sentence and then suspended 50 days and the costs in the case.

Judge Kalbfleisch had deferred sentence lost week in order to allow the woman to spend Christmas with her four children who are being kept in a private home through arrangements made by probate court.

The case was the first prosecuted in Mansfield under Ohio's revised relief laws that requires that a relief client appear before a notary public and make a financial statement quarterly concerning any change of status in their case.

Mrs. Jacobs was arrested on a warrant filed by Mrs. Agatha Leonard, relief investigator, who charged that the woman presented a false statement in applying for relief on Aug. 26 and again on Nov. 23.

Mrs. Jacobs told the court she made the false statement after her life was threatened by her husband who was on a leave of absence from the Toledo state hospital. Jacobs was returned to the institution on a probate court order two weeks ago.

heights beyond Tremp in the north coincided with the war's greatest aerial fight, in which 24 Insurgent planes won an apparent victory over 61 government fighters, shooting down a score, it was said.

After a night punctuated with sporadic fire and lighted by star shells in a reproduction of World war scenes, the battle along the 50-mile Catalonian front was resumed at daybreak when mortars started pounding.

Italian-made tanks led an attack at Cogull, where the Insurgents have been unable to hammer a way through the line to Borjas Blancas. Two attacking tanks were destroyed with hand grenades, government advices said, but the battle was still proceeding with enormous violence.

START $17,000 SEWER PROJECT

80 Workers on Job as WPA Resumes Construction Operations Here.

Work on a $17,000 storm sewer project in southeast Mansfield, started by 80 WPA workmen today, marked the re-opening of WPA construction in the city for the first time in nearly a month.

For the first time since the Works Progress Administration came into existence more than three years ago Mansfield had been without a single WPA construction project since the completion of the Woodland water project late in November.

A. N. Moellenkamp, general WPA project supervisor, said today that the 80 workmen transferred from the Pulver-List county WPA road project would be supplemented early next week with another crew of 45 workmen which will boost the total on the job to 125.

With a full crew on the project, he said, the job which includes the laying of nearly one mile of various size sewers is expected to be completed within eight weeks.

The project calls for the construction of the sewers on Arch street west to Jeanette, south on Jeanette to Greenlawn to Cleveland avenue and west of Clevelond to Hedges street, and on Scholl road to the western end of Shepherd road.

Of the total cost, WPA will contribute approximately $11,000 in labor, while the city's share of $6,000 for materials is to be paid from general bonds issued for the purpose several months ago by city council.

Bandits Herd Office Workers Into Warehouse; Miss Large Sack of Currency.

(By Associated Press)

YOUNGSTOWN—Three armed bandits held up 20 employes in the railway express agency on the edge of the business district here today and escaped with approximately $35,000 consigned by a Youngstown bank to the federal reserve bank in Cleveland.

The three bandits entered the main office door but separated immediately.

Herded Into Warehouse.

While one bandit drew his pistol and ordered office employes into the warehouse, another herded warehousemen at the point of a sawed off shotgun. The third bandit went to the rear and herded in a group of truck drivers.

Employes were lined up facing a wall while the shotgun bandit watched them. One of the other bandits entered the money room and covered H. T. Harris, in charge of the money bags, before he had time to draw his own gun.

The bandits missed one large bag of currency, J. C. Murray, general agent said.

Believed He Was Guard.

Murray said he was standing in the rear loading platform and saw a man walk in with a gun.

"I thought he was a bank guard," said Murray, "so I said 'hello.' The bandit, his hands shaking nervously, shouted: 'Stand still, here.'"

G. W. Stover, an officer of the agency, said the night turn had just ended their tour of duty and had taken off their guns. The day men had not yet strapped on their weapons.

The bandits wrecked their car on a Division street bridge, smashing into a guard rail. They held up the first passing motorist, Joe Carso, and sped southward in his coupe.

Police said the wrecked car had two sets of license plates, the outer set strapped on with rubber bands over the original. The original plates were issued to a man who is said to have a criminal record, Detective Chief William Reed said.

The $35,000 lost was in $1 bills.

COLD 'RIDING' ON SCHEDULE

Sweeps Toward City From Midwest, Near Zero Weather Expected Tonight.

The second section of a cold wave that government weather observers predicted would strike Mansfield late Friday or Saturday from the northwest was "riding" on schedule today.

Reports from the middle west said the cold was moving ponderously eastward. The new wave is expected to be of short duration, but even more severe while it lasts than the first, with the air already chilled.

A slow decline in the temperature was expected in Ohio this afternoon and tonight as the new frigid blast settles over the state. The blustery gales that accompanied the post-Christmas cold will be missing.

The state forecast predicted partly cloudy weather tonight and Saturday with temperatures between 5 and 10 degrees above zero tonight. The low mark in Mansfield in the last 24 hours was 16 above early today. At noon the reading was 27.

Light snow which fell late yesterday made highways slippery and at least five persons died in Ohio in traffic crashes or from exposure.

The new cold wave blanketed the midwest with snow and subnormal mercury readings today. At Chicago the weather bureau predicted a fall to zero in the city for the first time in three years.

The temperature plunged from 20 to 10 degrees overnight in Detroit and was expected to go down to 6 degrees under cloudless skies.

Arrest Three Youths, Capture Lookout Who Deserted Post After Short Chase.

ALL HELD TO GRAND JURY

Open Window Proves Undoing of Suspects as Officers Pass by Club Quarters.

A youthful "lookout" who deserted his pals, only to be captured by police as he attempted to flee in an automobile was responsible for the arrest of three other youths as they burglarized the Sons of Herman club at Orange street and Central avenue early today.

He is Richard Roser, 18, R. D. 2, Mansfield, captured by Capt. Jesse Schwab and Patrolman William Lemmons on Fourth avenue, less than four blocks from the club, after the officers had taken the other three into custody.

Three In Building.

The three found in the building were Jacob Morganstine, 20, of 380 Newman street, his brother, John 18, and Wendall Graszl, 19, of R. D. 4, Mansfield, the officers said.

All four were held in the county jail today under bonds of $1,500 each, awaiting jury action, Roser on a charge of aiding and abetting in the burglary and the other three on charge of breaking and entering.

Arraigned in municipal court this morning all four pleaded guilty and were bound to the grand jury.

The youths were captured by the officers at 2:30 a. m. while they were making a routine round in a cruiser, and noted a basement window broken as they passed the building.

Lemmons went to the front of the building to "cover" that entrance while Capt. Schwab went to the window, the officers related today.

'Come Out or . . .

Schwab said he heard pounding within the club. Drawing his service revolver he ordered the youths to "come out or we're coming in after you."

He said the three meekly crawled out through the window which they had broken only a few minutes before. None were armed.

The officers returned to the club after taking the four to jail and said they found a music box in the clubroom broken open and looted of 28 cents.

After they had booked the three youths, the officers inquired where

Authorities said the suspect, who formerly lived near Lucas where a number of chickens were stolen, owns an automobile with tires which could have left the tracks found near the scene of two of the thefts.

Timekeeper on Project Here Charged With Falsifying Records of Employes.

Forrest L. Thompson, 26½ East First street, timekeeper on the Richland county WPA road project, was in the Cuyahoga county jail today awaiting federal grand jury action on a charge of falsifying WPA reports.

Thompson was taken to Cleveland by a U. S. deputy marshal after he pleaded guilty to the charges before U. S. Commissioner Charles Ball at Canton. Bond was fixed at $1,500.

Charges against the timekeeper were filed by Wayne Sanders, special field agent of the WPA division of investigation who accused Thompson with padding the federal payroll.

WPA officials in Columbus said the alleged "padding" was discovered early in December when a district timekeeper checking the Richland county records of the road project found "certain" irregularities.

District WPA Director J. L. Kelley pointed out the irregularities prompted an investigation of the records in Mansfield by the WPA division of investigation and

PARIS —(U.P.)— Iran (Persia) broke off diplomatic relations with France today because of a joke about a cat.

Two years ago a French humorous weekly published a joke that the point of which was a play on the similarity of the words shah, for the Shah of Persia, and chat, which is French for cat.

The shah was made angry and threatened then to sever relations. However, the incident blew over and all was well until the foreign office was notified last night by its minister to Teheran that relations were broken.

It appeared that when the annual cat show was held in Paris recently, magazines reprinted the shah-chat joke, and copies of the magazine had reached Teheran—and the shah—by air mail.

$8,500 Left For Relief As '38 Ends

City Faces Real Problem In Finding $100,000 For 1939 Needs.

Mansfield will wind up 1939 with a balance of $8,500 in its relief fund but where it will find an additional $100,000 to meet direct aid needs in 1939 will be a problem, City Auditor Paul L. Kelley said today.

There was a balance of $16,000 in the relief fund Dec. 1, but with December expenditures estimated at $7,500, the balance Jan. 1 will be approximately $8,500, Kelley said.

During the nine and one half months the city has administered relief, receipts, including all revenue from the state totaled $111,500. Expenditures during the same period will amount to $103,000.

Cost of direct relief, Kelley said, would total $92,532 while administrative expenses will amount to $10,468, or an average of 10.5 per cent during the period. This is 4½ per cent under the state maximum of 15 per cent allowed for administration.

Hits Low In October.

Kelley's figures showed that direct relief costs which stood at approximately $12,000 a month when the burden was turned over to the city last March had been reduced steadily to a low of $6,100 in October.

In the past two months, however, the monthly costs have shown an increase to the $7,500 estimated to be spent this month.

Kelley gave as the chief factor in the reduction, the re-registration of relief clients under the new state law which has reduced the number of cases from a high of 1,139 last March to a new low of 553 as of Dec. 1.

The case load and direct relief costs by months follows:

March—half month, 1,139 cases; $6,663; April—1,091 cases, $11,856; May—1,069 cases, $11,452; June—1,018 cases, $12,011; July—972 cases, $11,834; August—947 cases, $10,246; September — 789 cases, $7,589; October—627 cases, $6,143; November—553 cases, $7,268; December (estimated) $7,500.

Effinger, Accused Leader of Black Legion, Surrenders.

LIMA, O.—(AP)—Virgil Effinger, Lima electrical contractor and accused head of the hooded Black Legion, surrendered today to Sheriff William V. Daley.

M. B. Jenkins, assistant county prosecutor, said Michigan authorities had been notified and probably would send someone for Effinger late today. Effinger is wanted in Detroit on charges of criminal syndicalism and bomb possession in connection with Black Legion activities two years ago.

Effinger was refused a rehearing by the state supreme court Wednesday in his unsuccessful effort to escape extradition. His attorney have announced they would carry the appeal to the United States supreme court.

LEVIES IN COMMITTEE

Governor's Supporters Out to Muster Votes to OK Leasure in Job Law Position.

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Gov. Martin L. Davey's nomination of Clarence H. Knisely to succeed Thomas M. Gregory on the state industrial commission was confirmed by the senate today, 20 to 0. A battled loomed over reappointment of Charles Leasure to the unemployment compensation commission. After acting on Knisely's nomination the senate adjourned until 2 p. m.

COLUMBUS — The house of representatives recessed until 2:30 p. m. after introduction of two bills calling for re-enactment of the liquid fuel and cigaret excise taxes.

The bills were designed to close the gap in the two taxes which would occur should they be allowed to lapse at midnight tomorrow. It was pointed out that there would be a two-day interval before the incoming general assembly could act to renew the laws.

Go to Committee.

The cigaret excise tax bill was put in the hopper by Rep. Carl F. Wintzer (D., Auglaize), and the liquid fuel measure by Rep. W. F. Sheely (D., Ross). The cigaret tax bill would extend the levy indefinitely.

The house also received a message from Governor Martin L. Davey which recommended that the first $24,000,000 from sales tax receipts should be definitely set aside for the public school fund.

It was ostensibly for the purpose of solving the school fund problem that the legislature was recalled for the two-day session, although Davey's chief interest was in obtaining senate confirmation of two appointments—those of Clarence H. Knisely, retiring treasurer to the industrial commission and Charles H. Leasure to a six-year

Warm Welcome Assured City's First 1939 Baby

Mansfield's No. 1 baby of 1939 will be given a warm and hospitable greeting when it makes its "world premiere" after the stroke of midnight Saturday, for Mansfield merchants will follow the "first baby" tradition and will present a shower of gifts for the baby and its parents.

There are only two conditions governing the annual stork race—it must be established beyond a doubt that it IS the first baby of the New Year, and it must be a bonafide Mansfield product, its parents Mansfield people and the baby born within the corporation limits of the city.

For the baby there will be a week's supply of grade A milk from the Page Dairy company; a large photograph of the baby (when it is old enough to be "shot" by the camera) by Headley-Perez; a supply of accredited baby food from the Park grocery; a pin-up lamp for the nursery from the Ohio Public Service company, and a wool baby blanket from the John S. Jones company.

The parents will fare even better than the baby for there will be a ton of coal from the Estes Coal company; eight theater tickets from the Park theater; a Silex coffee maker from the Ohio Fuel Gas company; free laundry work from Calvert laundry, and the John S. Jones company will take the mother and baby home from the hospital (if the baby is born there) in the Jones invalid coach.

Columbus Grocer's Dying Statement Leads to Probe.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Only the dying words of Carlton S. Steinhoff, "a Negro shot me," provided police a clue today to the slayer of the 69-year-old Columbus grocer.

Steinhoff was shot in the chest last night at his east side store in what detectives said was an apparent robbery attempt.

County Seeks To Delay Paying T. B. Bills To Cut '39 Budget

Reducing their 1939 county operating appropriation by about $3,000, Richland county commissioners today sought to delay for at least six months payment of bills for hospitalization of county tuberculosis patients in sanitariums outside the county.

C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the board of commissioners, said the delay, if granted by three hospitals in which the county has patients, would enable the county to omit a $10,000 item from next year's appropriation.

Since a one-half mill levy to provide funds for the care of patients, voted in November, will not be operative until 1940, Mitchell said the county would attempt to borrow against the future collection of the levy to pay the hospital bills late in 1939.

The tentative 1939 appropriation, which had been set up today by commissioners and County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe, calls for expenditure of approximately $345,000 for operation of the county government next year, a reduction of about $3,000 from this year's figures.

ICKES REPORTS PWA MACHINERY ACTS SPEEDILY

Secretary Says 8,137 Projects Put Under Contract Since 'Push' Started in July.

WASHINGTON—Secretary Ickes reported to President Roosevelt today that the Public Works Administration had been 100 per cent successful in carrying out its part of the administration's huge spending-lending program.

The report went to the White House amid speculation that Mr. Roosevelt might support a movement among congressmen to make the PWA a permanent agency.

It emphasized the speed with which a nationwide $1,500,000,000 construction program had been initiated as the spearhead of the drive—started last July 1—to improve business.

In the six months, the PWA disclosed, 8,139 construction projects have been put under contract. Ickes said work would be started on virtually all of them by next Monday, the deadline set by congress.

Impressed By Speed.

Mr. Roosevelt, according to some reports, was impressed with the fact that such speed would have been impossible had the PWA not had experience in two previous programs—both of which got off to a much slower start—and had it lacked a reservoir of proposed projects on which to draw.

Several congressmen have suggested that PWA be made permanent and that the Works Progress Administration be curtailed and eventually scrapped.

While the president has in the past favored a permanent public works agency, there was doubt among informed persons that he would agree to abolishing the WPA. In support of this they cited his often-expressed view that provision must be made for the needy unemployed.

The total PWA program, according to federal interpretations, amounts to more than $1,500,000,000 of construction of every dollar spent, it was estimated 36 cents goes to pay labor and 64 cents to buy materials, mainly iron and steel products, cement and other durable goods.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics figured that every dollar would furnish directly one hour of labor to one man actually employed on a project and 2.5 hours of labor to workers in industries benefitted by the purchase of materials.

CONFESSES IN SLAYINGS OF 5

Georgia Suspect Craved Money; Taken to Distant Jail.

SAVANNAH, Ga.—(U.P.)—A 24-year-old colored man who said his desire for money led him to beat four persons to death with an iron pipe and kill a nightwatchman with a shotgun was removed for safekeeping today to a distant and undesignated jail.

Marion Hunter confessed to killing James Tillman, his wife and two small daughters, and Tom Chester, watchman, on the night of Dec. 22.

Solicitor General Samuel A. Cann said Hunter had signed a detailed confession to the five slayings.

Authorities were told that Cross, a truck driver, fired five shots in Vallentine's restaurant. Lois Curry and Esther Smalley, who were with Mrs. Cross, were wounded slightly.

BUCYRUS—Glen C. FILES SUIT IN FIDELITY CASE

Ohio Woman Asks Restraining Order Until Settlement of Receivership Petition.

(By Associated Press)

WHEELING, W. Va.—Mrs. Alice P. Hutchison of Toledo, O., has intervened as a defendant in the receivership suit against the Fidelity Investment association of Wheeling.

The receivership petition was filed Dec. 21 in federal court by a group of Philadelphia contract holders who charged the association "recklessly, carelessly and wrongfully managed and operated" its accounts.

Mrs. Hutchison, also a contract holder, claimed her interests would be affected by a receivership management and denied the Philadelphia grouped represented herself or other contract holders.

She asked that the association be compelled to maintain a status quo in regard to contracts and other obligations and be restrained from paying any funds to contract holders or other creditors until the receivership proceedings had been settled.

The receivership suit grew out of injunction proceedings launched against the association by the securities commission, which sought to restrain the company from practices which it charged were fraudulent.

Without agreeing that the practices were fraudulent, the association agreed to the entry of the injunction in a Michigan district federal court and registered with the SEC.

The association was given until Jan. 9 to answer the receivership action. Company attorneys said the suit would be fought "to the bitter end."

FINDS FUNDS SOLVENT

COLUMBUS — State Superintendent of Insurance Robert Bowen asserted today that reserve funds behind Series D contracts of the Fidelity Investment association were "solvent by every legitimate test." Series D contracts are the type chiefly sold by the company in Ohio. Company officials said as a result of the SEC action in the Fidelity case, the company would maintain a reserve in Columbus equivalent to the total amount of contracts in effect.

Bowen pointed out that the valuation of the company's assets was apparently made at the depth of the depression and that he did not believe it to be a fair valuation.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The Hydraulic Press Manufacturing company, of Mt. Gilead, O., today had a $74,000 navy contract for presses.

LOW-COST NEWSPRINT MADE OF STRAW TO GET TESTS SHORTLY

(By Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH — A low-cost newsprint made from Pennsylvania wheat straw will be given its first try-out on high-speed metropolitan newspaper presses soon, Dr. F. W. Hochstetter said today.

The research chemist, who developed the paper last spring after months of experiments, disclosed straw pulp would be made in a Pittsburgh plant next week and trucked into a Tarnentum, Pa., paper mill.

Approximately 10 tons of finished paper will be manufactured and distributed to three Pittsburgh newspapers for tests of strength, inking, and reaction under speed runs.

Straw for the pulp was purchased from a Pittsburgh grain dealer but Hochstetter said other farm wastes—Florida grass, seaweed, cotton plant stems and a hundred other products"—could be used satisfactorily.

"As we see it now," the chemist explained. "A ton of newsprint from straw and similar materials will cost about $35 to $37 a ton. That will be, I am informed, about $10 to $15 less than the lowest prices for wood pulp newsprint."

In his laboratory he converted straw into a snow-white flexible paper in a few hours with simple equipment, the principal item being a common, household potato ricer.

The straw is treated in a "secret way" and converted into a fiber resembling a fine thread of cellulose of varying lengths. Given further treatment, it becomes pulp which can be rolled, made into sheets or slabs preliminary to conversion into paper.

SEE THOUSANDS MORE GET JOBS IN INDUSTRIES

Industrial Leaders Predict Auto Companies, Allied Lines Will Show Spurt.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Jobs for nearly a quarter million men in the motor car and allied fields were forecast today as leaders of nine industries peeked hopefully into the future.

Alvin McCauley, president of the Automobile Manufacturers association, speaking from Detroit in an NBC radio symposium last night predicted a 20 per cent increase in motor car production, adding:

"This means 90,000 more men back to work, augmenting the 310,000 wage-earners employed in automobile factories in 1938" and "could likewise mean 150,000 more jobs in the allied industries of steel, glass, rubber, cotton, wool and many others—for nothing benefits so many other industries to such a degree as the motor car."

Steel Profit Problem.

From others came these expressions:

Tom Girdler, president of the Iron and Steel Institute, from Atlantic City, N. J.—"Better year for steel operation," but with a "big problem of how to earn even a small profit;" recent elections have had a "heartening effect" for private enterprise.

Paul S. Willis, president of the Association of Grocery Manufacturers, from New York—"90 per cent expect their business to be better during the first half of 1939" than in the corresponding period of 1938.

Phillip A. Benson, president, American Bankers association, from New York—"more reasons for encouragement than for gloom."

Saul Cohn, president National Dry Goods association, from New York—"increased production x x x commercial expansion x x x indicate the beginnnig of a new business cycle."

Others who spoke included Edwin S. Friendly, advertising bureau chairman of the American Newspaper publishers association, who foresaw better conditions dependent upon government and industry facing and solving problems without delay.

SCHOOLS BEAT PWA DEADLINE ON ALL 11 UNITS

Entire Building Program Under Way 3 Months After Bond Issue's Approved.

Although near-zero weather this week hampered excavation work for the city's school construction projects, all 11 units under the $1,000,000 program were in operation today in compliance with the Dec. 31 deadline set by PWA.

In record time, the board of education and architects have planned the construction program and set the machinery in motion in approximately three months after Mansfield voters approved a $550,000 bond issue as the city's share of the program. The bond issue was passed at a special election Sept. 20.

First Unit Nearly Done.

While the first unit, a $25,000 shop addition at Senior high school, nears completion, excavation for the Johnny Appleseed junior high school and small additions at a number of the elementary buildings are just getting under way.

Workmen who are razing the old John Simpson building have confined their activities to the interior of the structure and have not been handicapped by the cold. Except for the removal of windows, the outside of the building shows little evidence that it is on its way to the scrap heap.

Outside work on the Senior high addition will be complete in a few days, and school officials predicted the entire building will be finished within a month. The schedule calls for completion by Jan. 28.

All major contracts for the construction work on the projects have been awarded except for the new John Simpson building. Bids on its construction will be opened Jan. 12.

John L. Delaney, assistant U. S. attorney, said that in 1936 the defendants put out $25,000,000 worth of tickets at $2.50 each.

SCOUTS DECIDE 5 "POLITICAL" CONTESTS IN PRIMARY TUESDAY

The race between Fred Lavender and Richard Sowash, both members of Boy Scout troop No. 2 for the mayoralty nomination on the nationalist ticket will be one of five contests that will be decided in the Boy Scout primaries Tuesday.

Candidates chosen in the primaries will run in an election to be held Jan. 31, to select scouts who will fill the various city offices and "run" the city for one day during National Boy Scout week in February.

Candidates in the other four contests also are nationalists. They are Robert Meese and Vern Myrland for service-safety director; Morton Frankel and William Fishback for municipal judge; Ed Arlin and Robert Larson for city solicitor, and Kenneth Smith and Edward Maxwell for councilman-at-large.

Floyd Dent, area scout executive, said only eight scouts have filed petitions for office on the Federalist ticket, and all will be unopposed in the primaries. No scout has filed a petition for the office of mayor on the Federalist ticket.

Twenty-four in all have filed on the two tickets. Unopposed Nationalist condidates are Doyle Painter, president of council; Robert Larson, fire chief; Robert Burns, police chief; Robert Curry, auditor; Robert Houlette, city engineer, and Ralph Stanton, clerk of council.

Candidates on the Federalist ticket are Richard Spetka, president of council; William Stahl, service-safety director; Robert Fore, fire chief; Albert Fillipelli, police chief; Fred Morey, auditor; Robert Stevenson, city engineer; Robert Canny, clerk of council, and Tom Letizia, councilman-at-large.

Scouts will vote at their own troop headquarters, and the election will be governed by a scout board of elections made up of scout officials.

HOUSE GETS TAX BILLS, SENATE FIGHT PENDING

Davey Asks 24 Millions for Schools, Message Doesn't Mention Appointments.

term on the unemployment commission.

The governor's message made no mention of the appointments. They were expected to be sent to the senate, however, as soon as that body convened. The house met at 10:53 a. m., but the senate had not convened and only a few senators were in the chamber.

Although the Knisely appointment was not expected to have strong opposition, the Leasure appointment was expected to run into trouble — both from anti-Davey Democrats and from Republicans, and there was some question as to whether Leasure would get the required 19 votes. Senate Leader Keith Lawrence admitted it would be "close" but claimed the necessary votes would be forthcoming. Opponents said they did not believe Leasure backers could muster more than 10 votes.

In his message, the governor said, in regard to school finances, that additional portions of the sales tax should be pledged by legislative enactment to pay the interest on current borrowing by the local boards of education so that the amounts which they receive under the school foundation law will be the full net amount intended under the terms of that law.

The governor added that the chief business of public importance coming before the fourth special session "is to help the problem of school financing," he added:

"It is important that the cigaret tax and the liquid fuel tax be reenacted, in order that there may be no question about the ability of the various boards of education to borrow at the time of the next quarterly settlement.

"It is the prerogative of a new administration to develop a broad program of permanent school financing, to provide for present requirements and the deficit which has accumulated largely in the last year because of bad business conditions.

"I have always thought that it was not fair under the terms of the school foundation law to require the local boards of education to pay the interest on loans which they have been required to make in anticipation of state revenues. I believe that any future program of school financing should provide for the state to take care of these interest charges."

Fights Dem Control.

The objection of anti-Leasure forces to his re-appointment was based not so much on dissatisfaction with the present chairman as on giving control of the important U. C. C. to Davey for four years after he leaves the governor's office.

Control of the commission would mean that Davey, although repudiated at the polls, would continue to have a commanding voice in the distribution of thousands of jobs all through the first administration of Gov.-elect John W. Bricker, a Republican, and even through Bricker's second term, should he be re-elected.

Faced with an increasing volume of objections to confirming Leasure, the Davey strategists carefully weighed their chances of mustering 19 necessary affirmative votes in a senate which in the past has gone against the governor more often than with him.

It was rumored that Davey might even withdraw Leasure's name and send up to the senate that of another Democrat considered to have a better chance of receiving confirmation.

Not all of the opposition to extending Davey's control of the U. C. C. for four years came from the Republican side. While they were less outspoken, anti-Davey Democrats did not relish the thought of placing so powerful a weapon in the hands of their political foe for use in the 1940 and 1944 elections.

Legislative Shift Certain.

Should Leasure be confirmed an attempt was certain to be made to enlarge the commission's membership or substitute an entirely new method of control soon after the Republican-dominated 93rd general assembly convenes next week.

The state tax and revenue commission, meanwhile, recommended to the legislature that, except for motor vehicle fuel taxes, the practice of earmarking certain revenues for specific purposes should be replaced by a policy of lumping all receipts into a common fund.

The commission, composed of 10 legislators and five members named by the governor, also expressed the belief that present tax laws should produce sufficient revenue for all state and local purposes, if amended in minor particulars and administered properly.

The commission recommended substitution of a three-member tax commission with six-year terms for the present four-member commission with four-year terms, and appointment of a tax administrator by the commission to coordinate all administrative activities, and

Creation of a board of tax appeals of five members to be appointed by the governor on a par diem basis with a maximum on annual compensation, and all appropriations to be made to the tax commission in a lump sum.

Re-enactment of the Whittemore law to permit payment of delinquent taxes in installments was recommended but no drastic changes were suggested for local administration of tax laws.

Governor-elect Bricker has indicated that he favored pooling of all state revenues, except those from motor vehicle fuel, so that money could be appropriated to various departments on the basis of need.

STUDY BUDGET

Officials Prepare Figures for Council's Approval.

SHELBY—City officials today were studying Shelby's operating budget for 1939 in preparation for presentation at the regular session of city council Tuesday night at the city hall.

The city budget totaling about $48,000 for operating expenses for 1939 was approved by the county budget commission last summer. This figure is an increase of approximately $2,000 over last year's appropriations, Finance Director Bert Fix pointed out.

The council will have to juggle the figures so that approximately $11,250 can be cut off of the amount asked by the city to meet the amount that the county commissioners approved, Fix disclosed. The city asked for about $59,000.

pital expense would be the major change in the appropriation. Commissioners set up a $7,500 fund to care for patients in the county, the same as last year's allowance.

An additional appropriation of $5,000 was set up, however, as the county's contribution for the year to the state public employes' retirement fund, effective Jan. 1. The county must match the four per cent contributions of appointive employes.

County Engineer Howard C. Sword's appropriation was increased about $1,800 to pay the salary of an engineer to handle county-sponsored WPA road and bridge projects.

Bond retirement needs for the year 1939 were reduced to $42,500 from $68,363 this year. All county finance bonds will be retired in 1940, Wolfe said.

He predicted that county income from real estate taxes next year would be slightly higher because of the new real estate values, while personal tax and sales tax receipts would be less than in 1938.

County commissioners will act on the appropriation measure Jan. 3, making necessary changes and approving it.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1938.

It may be assumed that by now all "exchanges" have been made and stores can resume the business of selling.

Do you cheat at solitaire? Why, the very idea—certainly not! So you may read Elsie Robinson's article, over in the other top corner.

Some West Virginia miners will celebrate New Year's at the bottom of a 3,000-foot shaft—this being the season when many motorists are traveling south.

It's the Unusual That Makes News.

THE McKesson and Robbins collapse, like other business scandals of recent years, results in some people saying: "Oh, business is like that—you never know when another scandal in big business or frenzied finance is going to break out."

The fact is, of course, that business and finance are not "like that." If they were, the suicide and exposure of a crooked drug merchant or the conviction of a prominent Wall Street broker would not arouse such widespread interest. It is the exceptional thing that makes a big news story. When crookedness gets headlines it is a safe assumption the vast majority of business men are honest, straight-forward and above-board.

And if it were not so, business could not carry on. The very life of so vast and intricate a system as modern industry, trade and finance depends on essential honor and faithfulness, as well as efficiency.

Even so, the sensational exposure of such an abnormal business man as Musica-Coster serves a good purpose. It emphasizes again the necessity of every custodian of other people's money being above suspicion, and of inspectors, accountants and directors taking their duties seriously.

Guns Ahead of Food.

WHAT do Germans think when their Fuehrer speaks to them as he did to 3,000 road workers recently?

"We are getting today more out of German soil than any other country in the world is getting out of its soil," he said, "but there is a limit to it.

"We want to make Germany so strong that no one can crush us. For this it is necessary that we organize our consumption so that we can cover it from our own production as far as possible

"There is one sphere where no increase has been possible, and that is food."

In other words, the limit of capacity for producing food has been reached and the German people must adjust themselves to it. That would be called tightening the belt over here. Only gun and bomb production expands.

It is hard to believe that all Germans concur in Hitler's idea that their troubles can be overcome by robbing and mistreating racial minorities at home, annexing neighbor countries and threatening foreign powers. Those cures only aggravate the disease.

Seek Reasons for Panic.

THE psychology department of Princeton university is going to study the mass hysteria which swept the country some weeks ago during a radio dramatization of H. G. Wells' fantastic story of an invasion of Earth by men from Mars. The university plans to spend $3,000 on the project.

Professor Hadley Cantril, who is in charge of the work, says the department will seek "first, to determine the general extent and nature of the public reaction to the broadcast, and second to find the social and psychological reasons for it in various types of individuals."

Even if the explanation is clear to many people, the psychological investigation may be useful, particularly if its findings are made public. It is possible that careful analysis of that panic may help to prevent an outbreak of individual fear and mass hysteria in some future emergency.

Skilled Workers Wanted.

THE navy department, making preparations for the anticipated speeding up of the navy building program, found a shortage of skilled workers. It has ordered all navy yard apprentice schools to run at full capacity until further notice.

The proposal to give some of the young men of the CCC special training in airplane design and construction recognized that in an expanded aviation program there would be a lack of skilled mechanics.

It has often been said that if all industry tried to resume operation on a capacity scale at the same time, it would be seriously handicapped by this same shortage of skilled workers. That was true of several industries during the recovery period of 1937.

Here seems to be both a need and an opportunity—a need of apprentice training for boys and an opportunity for the enterprising and skilled to obtain good jobs.

Wood for Building.

USE of lumber in heavy construction, supposedly taken over almost completely by steel and concrete, is said to be increasing. An article in the magazine, American Forests, explains the "new" application of wood as made possible by "timber connectors." These are metal grids, plates and rings developed by European engineers.

"They strike directly at the former weakness in heavy timber construction—the joint between timbers—and by increasing the strength of the joints to the full strength of the timber member itself, they have practically revolutionized engineering principles for timber," says the article.

Connectors have been used in more than 10,000 structures and have been responsible for the use of 344,000,000 feet of lumber in the last four and a half years. They are found in bridges, fire lookout towers, roof trusses and so on. A highway suspension bridge in the Siskiyou National forest is one of these. It has a span of 344 feet and contains 16,000 board feet of lumber.

Such a development as this will increase the importance of forest conservation and reforestation.

According to an insurance actuary, "you have the same chance of being struck by lightning as you have of becoming a millionaire"—so there's no use worrying about both happening.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — King George and Queen Mary will move into the White House next summer to find almost a complete absence of anything British except a recollection that his majesty's soldiers once burned the place down.

Other than the smoke marks, long since painted over, there is a white marble mantel in the Green room, brought from England in 1792, and the state dining room is paneled with English walnut. Other foreign touches mostly are French and Belgian.

Probably it is no ill omen, but the last reigning monarch who visited the place, King Prajadipok of Siam, no longer is on the throne. He came in 1931 as a guest of President Hoover. Hoover lost his job, too.

There aren't any historic ghosts in the White House—no records of bloody plots such as distinguish British castles. But the White House is a distinguished place none the less, although a bit crowded even for a democratic king.

There are seven bedroom suites on the upstairs floor, which traditionally is the family quarters. Present plans are for the king to occupy an east end suite containing the nine-foot Lincoln four-poster bed, which probably creaks. The place overlooks the treasury, also a matter of some interest to the British.

Might Crowd Things Up.

GOODNESS knows what would happen if the Roosevelt clan decided to come home for a family visit right at the moment. Doubtless Mrs. Roosevelt would make everybody comfortable, even if it meant a bit of doubling up. She has a friendly touch, and if King George VI feels a bit strange in a place where people speak English with a funny American accent, he probably will be made right at home soon enough.

It is a fact that stories about the place are comic as often as dignified. Abigail Adams, first of the line of first ladies, almost froze, what with the wet walls and incomplete fixtures. She hung the wash in the gorgeous imperial East room now all gilt and white, with shimmering chandeliers.

In the East room hangs the Washington painting saved from British soldiers by Dolly Madison. A group of busts of early Presidents came from the French. In 1860 President Buchanan received the first Japanese embassy to the United States in the famed room, as well as the Prince of Wales, later Edward VII. Theodore Roosevelt used it for practicing Jiu Jitsu with a Japanese coach.

Jeffersonian informality once offended the British minister. His wife was left unattended to find her way alone into a state dinner. Probably the FDR's will break that Jeffersonian tradition. The wild and woolly Jackson receptions still are a sort of annoyance for Democrats to remember, especially the one when a 1,400 pound New York cheese was hacked up in a hungry frolic, much of it being smeared on the walls.

Democrats like better to recall that Jackson locked himself up in an attic room in the White House to nurse a coachman whose smallpox had stampeded the servants.

Dolly Generous.

LAVISH Dolly Madison had one servant behind each dinner guest's chair but the Roosevelts have only one servant to each four.

Things could really be worse for their imperial majesties. As late as 1841 President William Henry Harrison used to go to market with a basket on his arm Not until 1877 were bathrooms installed. President Hayes also installed one telephone. Gas lights replaced candles in 1848, and 40 years later came electricity.

One thing is certain to convince the king and queen they are in a foreign land. There isn't a suit of antique armor in the whole place.

"COMING EVENTS—!"

Rubber Stamp Role Irks Congress

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Individual senators and representatives, and for that matter Congress as a whole, would like to throw the White House rubber stamp in the wastebasket, this session, but the Democratic majorities—still large in both House and Senate despite the slaughter on last election day—do not want to throw away with it the key to continuance in power, and to patronage.

The real question is just how many White House recommendations Capitol Hill can kick around without upsetting the applecarts of individual House and Senate members in their own renomination and reelection campaigns. It will be rather a nice question of judgment, in many instances, particularly for the large southern conservative bloc, and for northern and western Democrats who for one reason or another do not like Franklin D. Roosevelt, or the New Deal, or the particular New Dealers who are close to the throne.

THE hearings that are to come on the confirmation of Harry L. Hopkins will be rather revealing in this connection. Hopkins has not too many friends on Capitol Hill. And some of his best friends and warmest supporters may not be inclined to get their fingers burned too badly in defending him. Not that there is any real question, at the moment, of Hopkins' being confirmed. He will be. But there will be considerable pelting first.

For instance, consider the dilemma that will confront the Democratic leader of the Senate, "Dear" Alben Barkley, who fought to the death on the floor of the Senate last spring to prevent any hamstringing of the political activities of the WPA under Hopkins, and who benefitted by the political support of WPA in his fight for renomination probably more than any other candidate in 1938. But the consensus is that Barkley was hurt pretty badly—as far as his reputation OUTSIDE Kentucky is concerned—by that WPA business. If Barkley were not, in his own heart, a candidate for the presidency in 1940, he could afford a renewal of the scandal. But as it stands Barkley would like the country to forget how, on the floor of the Senate, he defended the use of WPA in politics because it was necessary to meet the use of state employes on the other side.

It will be found, unless a good many minds change between now and then, that few stones will be put in the path of those who wish to do a lot of dirty linen washing over Hopkins' confirmation. At least few stones will be put there by senators. The White House, of course, and Hopkins' host of friends in the left wing of the New Deal, will try to move heaven and earth. However, there is no indication that any one around the senate will pay much attention to efforts that Harold Ickes, Tommy Corcoran and Ben Cohen may make to protect their friend.

EVEN the senators who are still for the president do not all like his left wing lieutenants. There is the question of believing the best Democratic strategy, looking toward 1940, is for a slight turn to the right, as predicted by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson. There is the old fact of human nature that loyalty lies to the king, but not to the king's ministers. Most of the enthusiastic followers of many great leaders always wish they could kick out some of his lieutenants. "Badly advised" is more than a descriptive phrase. It usually implies resentment that the advice is given by somebody else!

Key West, Southernmost City, Declares Civic Principles

CIVIC apathy has no hold on Key West, Florida, says an editorial in the current issue of Rotarian Magazine. A virile public spirit fends it off. The chief stimulus to the city's enthusiasm is the new 57-million-dollar Overseas highway which connects it to the Florida mainland. Its recent completion, townsfolk believe, presages a new era of prosperity for the famous winter-resort city.

But the great bridge has also brought a problem. Down the gleaming concrete ribbon have come many fine home-seeking families and vacationists. The town has welcomed them. But along with such folk have come others seeking to set up gaming tables and race tracks, with an eye on "easy money." For these the city has no room, no welcome. It made that plain a few months ago in A Key West Declaration on the subject, sponsored by all civic organizations. Mayor Willard M. Albury drew up the statement to give representative groups a means of expression on the vital issue. The following excerpts make the fact eloquently clear that the voice of decency can be heard—if enough decent people raise it:

"• • • The problem before us is, 'Shall Key West be a shining example of a city rightly governed, which offers in addition to its unsurpassed natural advantages an abode of peace and safety • • • or shall it accept the wages of prostitution and, for a false and transient show of money, harbor underworld exploiters, great and small?'

"We welcome the stranger who would come among us and exchange money for service, or service for money; who would add homes and enterprise to our commonwealth, who comes to Key West seeking a more abundant life.

"We have no welcome for any of that multifarious class who are 'on the make'; whose aim is to find easy money without rendering an equivalent therefor and who can only offer dishonorable employment to our young people.

"Key West has always, even in the days of tribulation, been a proud city. Now, when the future of incalculable service to the finest people of our country lies before it, more than ever before, let us highly resolve that the soul of Key West is not for sale."

Cites Need For Airport.

Editor News-Journal:

We are proud of our city and are helping in various ways that it may keep pace with surrounding cities. There is a growing number who are looking forward to seeing air transportation as one important means toward advancing the interests of our community.

We should now seriously take into account the benefits which air line communication can bring to our city. The store or company official can more easily handle and direct the affairs he must look after. His employes may prosper from this advantage and may have the opportunity of living in a community such as our own. This is because the swift means of carrying on business, provided by air line communication, does not require the business or industry to be crowded in with the rest of a large metropolis.

We should look forward to seeing our airport enlarged and improved, to seeing passengers board regularly scheduled airliners, as well as large quantites of air express and air mail being placed in the hold. And with that forward look to the progress of our city, furthered by air transportation, we should immediately investigate the possibilities of direct air mail pick-up and delivery service. Mansfield is one of several cities within this area that could derive immediate benefit from such a service.

Whisking up of our air mail by a regularly scheduled mail plane which need not even land, and the dropping of incoming mail, by a practical means which makes this feat possible, would certainly be a step toward later securing complete air transportation facilities, essential in future years.

Don't Cheat at Solitaire!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

IF I COULD make just one resolution, one prayer for the New Year, this is what I would ask—

"GOD, HELP ME NOT TO CHEAT AT SOLITAIRE!"

Those people who cheat at solitaire—ever watch one of 'em? There they are, within an ace of winning. Card by card, they've drawn nearer to victory. If only this next play comes out right—

But it doesn't!

They glare . . . they bite their lips . . . you'd think they'd come one short of winning the Irish Sweepstakes. Then suddenly an idea strikes them! Their eyes light up with a sly gleam . . . they look about cautiously, to the right, to the left . . . Then, suddenly there's a swift-sleight-of-hand . . . The thing is done—THEY'VE WON!

But while they beam with delight you turn away in disgust. How childish, how pitiful! What joy can they possibly derive from tricking themselves?

You're right—success like that isn't worth much.

AND YET WE ALL DO THE SAME THING! SOONER OR LATER, WE ALL CHEAT AT SOLITAIRE!

We don't call it that, of course. We don't even call it cheating. Some disturbing incident has happened . . . something that isn't exactly to our credit. We've said or done something unkind or discreditable, perhaps, and we're upset over it. It's humiliating . . . an embarassing blot on what has been a fine record. We'd like to forget it if we could—but we can't. It keeps pestering us.

But presently we begin telling ourselves that it wasn't our fault after all. It's all a mistake. We didn't do what people thought we did—not really. We've been misunderstood.

Now here's what really happened—

And, forthwith, we change the picture—just a little bit. But, even though it's only a little, it puts us in an entirely different light. An admirable light! We've gotten ourselves out of a tight corner . . . we've rid ourselves of that unpleasant recollection—WE'VE WON!

So, by this little excuse or that little evasion or explanation, we cheat ourselves at Solitaire. Put ourselves in right with Ourselves. And win—

OR DO WE?

Can we ever profit by lying to ourselves . . . distorting facts . . . sneaking out from under . . .

No, we can't. To the contrary, we lose something immeasurably precious—OUR OWN HONEST RECKONING WITH OURSELVES. AND DO OURSELVES IRREDEEMABLE HARM.

For it is actually possible to lie so often to ourselves that it is impossible to recognize the truth about ourselves when we see it.

You've seen people like that—scores of them—people who were utterly oblivious of glaring faults which were obvious to everyone else. You may not have believed they were really oblivious . . . may have branded them as hypocrites. But chances are you were wrong. For it's perfectly possible to lie to ourselves so long and so constantly that we live, at last, in an unreal world with unreal selves.

The malicious Busy-Body who honestly believes she's the soul of friendliness . . . the contemptible coward who has convinced himself that he's just "careful" . . . the chiseling parasite, whom everyone avoids, who comforts himself by saying he's always getting a hard deal—THEY ALL CHEAT AT SOLITAIRE.

Wonder if I do? Wonder if you?

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Hmmmmmm. Mr. Leo Pillot, of Universal, sends in a note. He says, "Dear George, sorry I haven't been in to see you, but a strepti germ infection had me on my back for two weeks, and my doctor thinks I ought to go south for a rest. So I'm off for Florida on Thursday, and I'll be gone for about a month. See you in February."

Let's see now. That's the third ailing guy on Broadway I know to leave this week. It's mighty cold and nasty up here. The papers say sleet and snow, and still more sleet and snow. But down there it's all sunshine and hot sand and waving palms. . . . Hmmmmm.

OUR nature item for the week concerns the two hunters who were assuaging their cares over a bottle of rum in the tent late at night. They were after lions in Africa. They were very gay. After assuaging himself with a few more snorts, one hunter exclaimed:

"What do I need a gun for. I'm going out after a lion tonight. I'll take him with my bare hands."

His pal, after a long, thoughtful pull at the bottle, replied: "Don't do that, Joe. You might miss. Better wait till morning and take your gun. Then we'll get one."

"No," yelled Joe, helping himself to another snifter. "I won't wait till morning. I'm going now."

"All right, but I'll bet you a dollar you don't get one."

"It's a bet," said Joe.

So Joe took a hitch in his belt, rolled up his sleeves, and plunged into the jungle. His pal drew the bottle a little closer. It was mighty comfortable in that tent. He assuaged his thirst a few more times. He must have stayed there a couple of hours. Suddenly he heard a noise and a big lion thrust his head through the flap of the tent.

"Say, pal," said the lion, "I just dropped by to tell you your buddy owes you a buck."

OCCASIONALLY while kicking around the town I run into Bob McGimsey of Mississippi. Let me tell you about Bob. When he was a little boy his grandmother used to tell him Bible stories, and one of his favorites was about the three Israelites—Shadrach. Meshach, and Abednego — and how they were thrown into the fiery furnace. If you know your Bible you know they escaped the flame.

Bob was fascinated by this story. The names of these three Israelites ran through his mind like a strange rhythm. He never forgot it. And one day he wrote a song, "Shadrach." It was a classic. Lawrence Tibbett sang it. John Charles Thomas and Nelson Eddy sang it. Larry Clinton heard it and made an arrangement of it. Louis Armstrong did likewise. Overnight it became a swing sensation, and now it is sweeping the country.

Shadrach . . . Meshach . . . Abednego . . . A little boy in Mississippi sitting at his grandmother's knee, listening raptly to Bible stories. . . . Seems strange, but that's how songs are born.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

"Book."

"A man," wrote Boswell, "will turn over half a library to make one book.

Also and frequently, half a thousand acres of forest — a practice speeded up by the modern passion for print, but essentially the same as of yore.

For "book" is simply the up-to-date form of the Anglo-Saxon boo for "beech," the tree out of which our forebears cut boards for "pages" to write upon.

We make them thinner now.

Daily Bible Thought

He shall drink of the brook in the way: therefore shall he lift up his head.—Psalms 110:7.

A Farmer's Diary

A Farm Cellar.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I STOPPED at a former neighbor's home to buy some grain. He had butchered five hogs the day before, and with some pride, invited me to see his store of meat, which he had put into a well-ventilated portion of his cellar. We went through the kitchen, and down the inside steps. The mingled fragrances that greeted us were familiar and pleasant. There was no furnace. Instead, the earthen floor emitted the odor of the deeper soil, and was yielding to walk upon. Part of the meat was stacked on benches. The hams and sides were placed in wooden tubs, immersed in brine. The stuffed sausage looked like large, coiled serpents, in a huge, glazed crock.

He showed me the larger cellar. Here a long bin heaped full of potatoes was on one side, on the other were stacked Winesap, Delicious and Stark apples, in bushel crates. At the farther end were four broad shelves, on which stood the canned fruit, jams, jellies, applebutter and various jugs and bottles. By the cellar step stood a large barrel. Vinegar, my neighbor said it was.

To the right, near a spacious window, a swinging shelf hung from the beams above. Upon this I saw eight big round loaves of brown crusty bread and several mince and apple pies, all covered with an old white tablecloth. (I admit, I peeked).

"How often does your wife bake?" I asked.

"Twice every week," he said, and smiled. "There are ten of us, all with good appetites, but we figure that's better than doctor bills."

"You don't appear to be losing any weight," I said. "I'll bet you'd go to 200."

"Yes, a little more," he admitted. "And my wife"—he chuckled—"she never gets weighed no more."

With that, we left such weighty subjects and went upstairs.

PLANS REPAIR OF 2 BRIDGES

State Lets Contract for Work in County; Purdy Gets $305,000 Job.

Contracts for the construction and repair of two bridges on state highways in Richland county had been awarded today to the Brookville Bridge company, Brookville, O., for a total of $2,610.

At the same time the state highway department let a contract to the Purdy Construction company of Mansfield for construction of three bridges on route 23 in Pike county for $305,951. The Purdy bid was $70,400 under the estimate on a federal aid project. The awards were made on low bids.

The Richland county projects include repair of a steel truss bridge over Cedar Fork creek on the Lexington-Fredericktown road (state route 546), and a bridge over Clear Fork creek on the Marion-Mansfield road (state route 545).

The winning bid on the first project was $1,917 against an estimate of $2,260. On the other bridge project the bid was $693 on an estimate of $850.

The projects were among $3,518,640 worth of state jobs which the Citizens Tax league and Preston Davis attempted to block with an injunction suit. Judge John R. King of Franklin county common pleas court refused to grant an injunction.

3,500 TO GET WATER BILLS

Sewer Rental Included in Statements Going Out Tomorrow.

Approximately 3,500 east side water customers will receive their sewer rental bills along with their water bills Tuesday, Fred E. Lingafelter, secretary of the water, garbage and sewer department announced today.

The statements totaling $25,587, will be placed in the mails tomorrow. Payments are due at the office of the water department in the city building between Jan. 1 and Jan. 15.

Of the total amount of the billing, Lingafelter said, approximately 80 per cent or $18,394, represents the water billing while $6,193 is for sewer rental.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

SIMPLE ACTIVITIES PRECEDE GALA NIGHT

Few Meetings, Quiet Parties Provide Bulk of Entertaining as Mansfielders Prepare for Club Dances This Week-End.

SIMPLE pleasures along with a few post-Christmas parties seem to be keeping the social and club circles quiet these days as Mansfielders busily prepare for the festivities of the long New Year Eve week-end. Many folks are planning to be out of the city for the holiday, but others are staying in town so as not to miss two of the season's most socially prominent dances.

Tonight several hundred persons will enjoy the rhythm of Herschel Stayton's orchestra in the Mansfield-Leland ballroom when the University club entertains with its holiday formal. Tom Ford and Lloyd Brown have made all the arrangements.

Although it is true that a number of holiday parties will be given in private dwellings, doubtlessly the most exciting event for New Year Eve is the Our club dance scheduled at the hotel Saturday night. Arrangements were made by Mr. and Mrs. Tom Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hartman, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hout and Martin Wolf. The party will be a supper-dance from 9:30 p. m. to 1:30 a. m.

College Students Attend Function

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

TODAY is one of great joy and excitement for Emily Cox. She is leaving for Chicago to spend the New Year holidays visiting Bob Fisher and other friends there. It's Emily's first trip to the Windy City in eight months so she's quite thrilled . . . and who wouldn't be . . . at the prospect of celebrating the arrival of 1939 in some of Chicago's smartest dancing clubs.

Peggy Claire Buckley, age 8, is probably Mansfield's youngest hostess. She and her brother, Tommy, who is 6, entertained a group of their classmates at a party Wednesday afternoon at the home of their parents, 117½ Blymyer avenue. Peggy Claire presided at the table when refreshments were served and poured tea for her little guests. Incidentally, the children's parents, Tom and Margaret Buckley, have returned to make their home in Mansfield after living in Springfield, Mass., for the past eight years Margaret says they're very happy to be back, and that they much prefer the mid-western states to New England.

No doubt lots of young feminine hearts skipped more than a couple beats at the Delta Sigma Zeta sorority dance Wednesday evening . . . for Jim Langhurst, one of Ohio State's shining football stars was there with Virginia Moorhead. Jim came up to Mansfield last Wednesday to visit with his fraternity brother, Paul Flohr. . . . Both students are members of Delta Upsilon fraternity at the university.

DID you know we have a Deanna Durbin in Mansfield, too? Well, we have . . . and members of the Journey club more than realized it when Kathleen MacIntosh sang for them Wednesday evening. Kathleen is just about Deanna's age . . . she even resembles the young star and has many of the same mannerisms. . . . Katnleen's favorite songstress is Jeanette MacDonald. . . . Kathleen will appear in the senior high operetta, "In Old Vienna," early next month, and in the spring she plans to try for a scholarship at the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia.

Joseph Scholl (who moved from Mansfield to Torrance, Cal., with his wife and daughter, Helen, about six weeks ago) must have been pretty excited and pleased on Christmas morning when he received a package from a Mansfield dairy . . . it contained his favorite flavor of ice cream! The precious package was packed in dry ice and carried all the way to the Pacific coast by plane.

When Irene (Arron) Heaton received the past president's gavel at the Chi Sigma sorority guest party Tuesday evening, the occasion was a little more important than that of the usual gavel presentation . . . for a charter member and the first president of the chapter was in attendance. . . . Martha (Strater) Gradner helped organize this group back in 1930, when she served as its first president. . . . Martha lives in Cincinnati now, but she's been spending the holidays with her family and friends in this city. Florence Nail, president of the sorority for the coming year, made the presentation.

FROM MY NOTEBOOK: Kathryne Fighter had her first orchid the other night . . . it was a gift from Howard Ripper, her escort to the Delta Sigma Zeta dance. Santa was mighty nice to Wileen Treisch this Christmas . . . or maybe it was Tom Johnson from Marion. . . . Anyway she received a beautiful diamond . . . in an attractive yellow gold mounting. When Kit Rhoads entertained a group of 26 friends the other night . . . the guests more than appreciated the Christmas tree, which Mrs. Rhoads spent a week decorating. . . . Really it's one of the largest and prettiest trees in town.

FAMILY PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H Hipp, 130 West Second street, entertained 14 relatives at dinner last night at the Evergreens. The party was in honor of Mr. Hipp's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs Louis Hipp, Greensboro, N. C., and his sister, Mrs. Louella Cooper, Chicago, Ill. After the dinner the guests were entertained socially at the Hipp residence.

SKI PARTY.

The Misses Joan Balliett and Charlotte Gray were hostesses to 18 friends for a tobogganing and skiing party at Westbrook Country club last night. The guests returned to the Balliett home, 11 Euclid avenue, for dancing and luncheon. The refreshments were served at a table decorated with a Christmas tree, spruce branches and lighted tapers.

Quick Relief for DEEP RASPY COUGHS (DUE TO COLDS)

If that cold has caused throat or bronchial irritation, put a small lump of Vicks VapoRub on your tongue and let it melt. Feel VapoRub's medication bathe the irritated membranes as it slowly trickles down your throat—bringing comforting relief—where you want it—when you want it. Next, melt a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water Then breathe in the steaming medicated vapors for a few minutes. As these vapors work their way down through the irritated air-passages, they loosen the phlegm and ease the cough. The relief that VapoRub brings will delight you.

Willing to Make-Up Quarrel

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Gerald and I have quarreled, and I'm just sick about it. This happened six months ago. I said something which I was sorry for immediately afterward, because I didn't mean it at all. It just slipped out. I've seen him since then, and he has called me up but it seems as if we can't speak without quarrelling. I'm sure he still cares for me, because he just about told me so, and I know I love him. Please suggest something that will bring us back together again, as the best of friends. I'll take all the blame for starting the first misunderstanding.

UNHAPPY.

You know it takes two to make a quarrel. Why don't you simply refuse to be the party of the second part? If you do, the fussing is bound to come to an end. The next time you see him, say a cheery "hello," and then: "When are you coming over, Gerald," and when he comes, don't mention the quarrel. Make his visit very pleasant and he'll surely forget that you ever had a misunderstanding.

Light Touch Creates Best Make-Up

By MME. QUI VIVE

There's a new rule about make-up; use less pigment and more time. To attain the effect of freshness, to embellish the complexion with artifice requires more skill, patience, horse sense and understanding than to make the face scenic. To paint red apples on the cheeks and to plaster the lips heavily with the rosy glow is to tell the world that one hasn't stepped along with the style pageant.

Before applying make-up there should be a warm bath and a cold shower. The reaction of the blood streams conditions the skin so that it will accept cosmetics and hang onto them.

Before using a foundation cream the flesh must be dried thoroughly with a soft towel, laved with a tonic lotion so there will not be a suggestion of skin moisture. The foundation cosmetic is smoothed on evenly, up to the tiptop portion of the forehead, into the little creases beside the wings of the nose, over the throat, on the ears, but not over the eyelids. Soul window shutters look best as is, even better than best if touched lightly with vaseline or mineral oil.

A brisk patting and slapping must continue until every particle of the cream has disappeared. Smoothing with flattened fingers is the finishing touch. It starts at the collar bones, continues up over throat and chin, from chin to temples, across the forehead.

Powder next. Put it on with quick flips of the pad, never make the skin look thick and heavy. Do not start on the nose. Under the chin first. Don't overlook the ears. Shining ears are no nicer than a shining nose.

If rouge is used, make a triangle, a curved line under the eye, two lines meeting below in a point. It's a cute trick to leave a tiny pale space in the center. Make the ear lobes slightly rosy.

Outline the lips carefully with a steady hand, fill in with the red pigment. Stretch the lips flat, touch the inner surfaces. Brush the eyebrows and lashes with brilliantine. Spray the hair lightly with the favorite perfume.

To keep marshmallows moist, store them in the bread box.

When making fruit cake or plum pudding, if the amount of flour is not stated in the recipe, add flour until the spoon with which you are mixing the batter will stand upright, without support.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, December 31.

THE CELEBRATION of the passing of the old year may be found a bit subdued or may lack the customary riotous hilarity and overindulgence, according to the astral influence. While there is some stimulus to festivity and boistrous good fellowship, generally there may be modifications, with a leaning to sober and serious reflection rather than dramatic and ungoverned thrills. There are fine benefits, promotion and sound friendships to be contemplated.

Those whose birthday it is may turn from the old year with much thought and look to the new with justified hopes of substantial progress, with the co-operation and friendly offices of those in high place and power. These should be cultivated and sound objectives developed, but there is a note of caution in dealing with the young.

A child born on this day may be talented, have much versatility, be progressive and ambitious, attaining substantial position, not only through its own merit but by the endorsement of high powers attracted by its real worth and dependability.

Casserole Tip

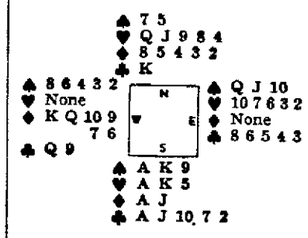
To make it easier to wash casseroles or baking dishes, butter the sides and bottom of the dish thoroughly before adding the mixture to be cooked. As soon as the food has been eaten, soak the dish in warm water for ten minutes. You will be delighted how easily it can be washed.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

A PAINFUL SQUEEZE

Have you ever been squeezed on the very first trick, by your partner's opening lead? It doesn't happen often, and it is a painful experience not to be desired But if you cannot follow suit, and have to discard something, your chief aim should be to hold on to cards which look as if they may eventually be important and toss away one which may possibly not count. Having done that, all that you can do it hope for the best.



(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

On this crazy patchwork, two passes were followed by East's psychic 1-Club, which South showed up with his vulnerable 2-No Trump. West, getting the interference and sacrifice idea, bid 3-Diamonds, then South 4-Clubs. When North showed a vestige of strength with 4-Hearts, South became emotional about his opponents' butting-in and leaped to 6-No Trump, favoring it over 6-Hearts because of his 100 aces.

West's lead of the diamond K put East on the spot. As it turned out, any card he shed would build declarer a trick. He chose a club, followed then the club K, the heart A, showing West out, the club A, dropping the Q, then the club J, on which West discarded. This gave South a complete count of both hands. He led another club, and yet another, which squeezed East for a second time. Had he tossed a heart, it would have set up the fifth one there. Instead he picked the spade 10, so declarer then cashed three more hearts and three spades, making a grand slam.

As it turned out, the diamond lead was not necessary to squeeze East. South could have squeezed him, after any other lead, by merely laying down his diamond A.

It will be noted that the grand slam can be made at only No Trump. At either hearts or clubs, East could take one trick surely.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

When West leads the heart J against South's 3-No Trump, and the dummy goes down, how much can East tell about the composition of the suit?

Wrap a sheet around the Christmas tree before taking it down. The Christmas trimmings will not then be scattered about the room.

Buffet Handy Way To Serve

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

ON NEW YEAR'S or any other eve throughout the year, the buffet is the best way of serving a meal when entertaining. The formal dinner is going out in many households, even those with plenty of help, and is often confined only to fixtures such as Thanksgiving or Christmas day. It's a good thing, too, for although there isn't so much emphasis on reducing, many a person is on some kind of diet or other, and sitting down to a set meal must either put him off his diet or must cause him to abstain from all but a few desultory pecks at the good viands offered.

What to Serve.

But a buffet—well, there's something else again. The festive buffet board can and should hold something pleasing to almost every taste—cold meats and relishes for the hearty eater, a hot dish such as spaghetti with chicken livers, or good, old chicken a la king, and then salads, the latter usually the delight of the dieter. Plenty of hot coffee, cookies, a simple and an elaborate cake, perhaps some cheeses with an assortment of crackers, and there you have a splendid buffet. On an occasion such as New Year's eve or a birthday or wedding anniversary, the hot dish may be a little more elaborate, the salads more plentiful and perhaps some moulded sweets, such as fruit-filled gelatin with whipped cream, or refrigerator sweets.

Small Tables Best.

It is best to set out small tables to seat four, even if it means begging said tables from all the neighbors. The nicest food will turn to ashes in the mouth of him who has to balance his platter the while he rushes to the buffet to refill the plate of his lady fair. Or else he puts down his plate, never to recover it again. He would exchange the nicest buffet for a sandwich and coffee in the nerest cafeteria where he has to serve himself, it is true, but where he can sit down in comfort to eat.

So set out your buffet, set up your card tables, stack plenty of plates and silver ware, and the guests will look after themselves. The same goes for the hosts.

Good Buffet Dish.

Spaghetti a L'Asta is a splendid buffet dish. It calls for one clove garlic, two and one-half cups canned tomatoes, two teaspoons celery salt, teaspoon sugar, teaspoon cinnamon, teaspoon ginger, one-eighth teaspoon thyme, teaspoon cloves, dash of cayenne, one large onion (chopped), one cup beef consomme, tablespoon butter, one cup chicken livers (cut up), one and one-half tablespoons flour, one cup mushrooms, spaghetti and Parmesan cheese. Mash the garlic clove in a good-sized saucepan, add tomatoes, celery salt, sugar, cinnamon, cloves, ginger, thyme, cayenne pepper and onion. Allow to simmer for 30 minutes. Then add beef consomme. While this is cooking, melt the butter in a skillet and saute the chicken livers in this. Then add the flour and mushrooms. Pour contents of the skillet in with the tomato sauce and simmer 15 minutes longer. Mix thoroughly with the spaghetti which has been cooked until tender. Serve with Parmesan cheese.

When eggs are to be poached or otherwise served whole, it is advisable to break each one separately into a small dish or saucer before putting it in the cooking utensil. Such a procedure keeps the yolks and whites intact.

Diary of a Fashion Model

Woolen with Alaskan seal.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

IT IS so nice to have Pam and her husband, Ken, with us. For once we have them without their youngsters, which means that we can plan to go places and do things together. My people are so happy, now that Bill and I have reconciled, and they feel confident about the future of their children.

We haven't discussed marriage yet, but, as I told you, we both know that Bill must look after his sister and her orphaned children and not for the world would I have him be delinquent in the duty that he has undertaken. But now that I have this marvelous job, with an opportunity to make money, the way seems much easier. For I feel that if things go on like this, that in a year I'll be able to do my share to lighten the burden for Bill. It is marvelous how everything has worked itself out. If I had not had this wonderful chance to build up our new line I would still be earning my former modest salary, with no opportunity of increasing it beyond the usual raise now and again. But now, with my nice pay-check and a percentage share in the earnings of the line, the sky's the limit.

The fact that I am mentally contented should help to increase my earning power.

I certainly can look forward into the coming year with confidence, hope and gratitude. I have never had a lovelier time than the holidays this year. Every one I love is here and we are all well and happy.

That brother of Phylys' is a darling, and all the girls in town are crazy about him. But for all his youth, family, wealth and good-looks, he is a very serious young man and is very interested in social problems. He intends to make politics his career. Phylys tells me that in a few years he will run for parliament, which will mark the beginning of his political career.

I went shopping with Pam and she bought this nice coat. It is of Persian blue woolen with an Alaskan seal peplum. It buttons both in front and back, does that smart peplum. The rolled seal border at front terminates in a standing collar which is set in the cloth. We bought the seal hat, trimmed with fringe, to go with the coat.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I'll do my little best," Mary promised as we went back into the living room of her hotel suite."

Mary took her place by the door, ready for her first entrance, and I gave a word of explanation to the two men so attentively watching her.

"What I have tried to do is to give her my idea of the role as I wrote it. You will find that it is radically different from Mr. Veritzen's interpretation, although I have tried to keep every possible technical detail of his reading and action. But I think you will agree with me that this is at least a living thing, where the rendition to which you just listened had no spark of life in it. All right, Mary! I'll give you the preliminary lines again."

I had no chance at first to observe the effect of Mary's new rendition upon her auditors, for I was absorbed in watching her for the tiny flaws which we were both trying to correct. Curiously enough, they were almost all in the very first part of the role, and when I had made my last "mental note" of points to be taken up with Mary at our next rehearsal, I sat back, thrilled to the very core of my being by the superb performance she was giving.

Noel, with a bound, was at her side, his arms around her and looking down adoringly into her flushed faced.

"I knew you were a great actress, sweet," he murmured, "but I never knew how great until just now."

Dicky was just behind him, and when Noel released her, he kissed his niece warmly.

"You have it, darling," he declared warmly. "The eternal spark, which about one in a million has. I didn't know before. I wasn't sure, but what you have just done proves it."

"It isn't I at all," Mary said huskily. "Every bit of it is Auntie Madge."

"You couldn't have done it without her, that's true," her uncle said, crossing to me and putting his arms around me. "She's done something with you that ought to make Phil Veritzen or any other producer offer her his kingdom.

"But, even she couldn't fan a flame unless the spark was there, and I'm here to tell you, that in your case, Mary, the spark is there."

"But what good is it going to do," Noel asked with sudden despondency in his voice, "if Father won't let her play the role as she wishes? If he makes her give that wooden interpretation, she's done for. She'd be laughed off the stage."

"I may be mistaken," Dicky said, still with the pretense of knowing nothing of my plans, "but I wouldn't be afraid to wager a good deal that your Auntie Madge has a scheme up her sleeve for the routing of the great Philip Veritzen."

"I pray she has," devoutly murmured the great Philip Veritzen's son.

"Better spill it, Madge," my husband said. "I have an idea of what it is, but I'd like to have my theory confirmed."

"It's just this" I said, and outlined my plan for Mary's sudden change at rehearsals from the wooden rendition upon which the great man had insisted to her own flaming interpretation.

"Your father, Noel," I said, "whatever his other faults, possesses an artistic conscience which he never betrays. I do not believe that once having seen this performance of Mary's he could deny it to his public. He would break faith with himself if he did."

CHAPTER 25.

Mr. O'Reilly was due to sail tomorrow for Liverpool, London and Cherbourg on a cotton freighter. Out of Houston, that would mean 21 days at sea, and 21 more coming back. It would be pleasant to know that a girl like that one yonder (Sara Sue) was waiting. Mr. O'Reilly was an A. B. In Thornton Holgate's world, A. B. meant Bachelor of Arts. In Mr. O'Reilly's world, it meant able-bodied seaman, a hard, he-man job.

There is no real need to dwell on the somewhat rapid processes by which Mr. O'Reilly worked up to the object of his desires. He simply fortified himself with a few more drinks of gin, barged up to her and said, "Chicken, you're mine. And nobody else's see?" Unfortunately he did it when Dr. Thornton Holgate was at Sara Sue's side.

When his leer and his liquor-breath offended her so that she declined to dance with him, Mr. Duke O'Reilly made some more conversation, and kissed her smack on the shoulder before she realized what had happened.

"Oh!" she cried, but Mr. O'Reilly pulled her into his arms, dancing. "Don't . . . don't!" she shrieked again, but Mr. O'Reilly laughed loudly and forced her on.

And Thornton Holgate, Ph. D., (who, of course, earned his own A. B. before winning his doctorate) stood there agape, holding one hand out as if in supplication.

"I say—my gracious!" he finally managed, still staring.

* * *

IT SEEMED like an hour or two that Dr. Holgate stood there, moving his chin, but uttering nothing sensible, staring at the boor who had forced Sara Sue onto the dance floor. He saw her now, trying to push away from the huge fellow, who was grinning. Then a man touched Dr. Holgate's elbow.

"Wasn't that the girl you brang?" queried Mr. White, Leila's husband.

Mr. White, a ship's carpenter, had mentioned earlier that he was proud to know Thornton.

"Why—yes! Yes, it is!" Thornton still seemed frozen, immobile.

"Well, I'd of smacked him over the fo'cas'le, m'self. Whyn't you do it?"

"Ah. Yes! Yes, I shall, Mr. White!"

Thornton came to life, and when he did so he walked onto the dance floor. Sara Sue almost bumped into him then. She had struggled free, but Mr. Duke O'Reilly was still grinning and pursuing her.

Whereupon Dr. Thornton Holgate, who was accustomed to swimming, and who played a very good game of tennis on occasions, drew back his right arm.

SPLAT!

It didn't make an awful lot of noise, but everybody seemed to hear it.

Mr. O'Reilly, amply warned, had tried to duck too late. Now he seemed to fold up, knees and midships, and he dropped in a heap on the floor.

"Wham!" said some bystander, enthusiastically. "What'd he do, Mister?"

A circle of people had formed. The music stopped. And at that juncture Mr. White, Leila's husband, stepped forward, fists up.

"Well, if O'Reilly's got a gang here, where are ye? Me an' Holgate here's achin' for more exercise. Ain't we, Holgate?"

"Why, ah—yes! Yes, just come on! One does not dare insult ladies in this assembly! I—that is, we—will—will smack them over the fo'cas'le. I am with you, White, one hundred percent."

* * *

Nobody thought it funny. In fact, it wasn't funny—unless one could have known the old Thornton Holgate intimately and been peeking in. A man in a tuxedo had knocked out a sailor, and another sailor had stood up for the man in the tux. Who wants to fight now?

Nobody did, and the dance went on. Some fellows dragged Duke O'Reilly out and revived him, but by that time Sara Sue and Thornton were on their way home.

"I am proud to know you," Mr. White repeated, bidding them goodby. "I'd thank you to come and see me and Leila some time. I want she should know folk better than me. I'm just a sailor. She married beneath her station, and—"

"I am sure she did not, Mr. White," Thornton declared, shaking hands, "even though she is a charming lady. We certainly hope to see you both again. I enjoyed the evening. I am grateful for your assistance in the little—ah—difficulty, also."

Sunday morning found Sara Sue Davis with a great deal on her mind.

She had refused both Bob Towne and T. J. Sanders when they had asked her for church dates this morning, and now she was doubly glad. She wanted to be alone. Or at least to be with her own private affairs. She soon found herself talking with black Cleo.

"Uhm uhm, you sho keeps yo'self busy, ma'am," Cleo was saying. "You got more love business than you 'magined you'd have, I expect:"

"I surely have, Cleo!"

There had been the upsetting episode of the Gurleys. The Gurleys, man and wife now! Youngsters still in their teens. Sara Sue sometimes had moments of conscience about that. Should she have stopped their marriage—or tried to—instead of aiding it? Well, they's both be 18 in a few days, and if ever she saw a perfect match, this was it. Moreover, they would have eloped anyway; Marcia's own father, who had flown to Houston when he got the news, admitted that. Sara Sue had been instrumental in keeping them both in Rice.

She had "lectured" Worthington's father. "World conditions today are not like they were 20 years ago, Mr. Gurley. Maybe your son acted for the best, after all. He will keep his chin up, whatever you do; he has pride. And he has friends, I can assure you. I hope you don't be too hard on him."

Mr. Gurley, sr., had mumbled and rumbled a lot and ended up by giving the married kids his blessing. He said it would cramp his bank account, but he would at least keep Worthington in school. And Marcia promptly found herself a spare-time job—and stayed in school, too!

"Anyway, I have that romance settled," Sara Sue told Cleo. "At least for a while. I think it will stick, too. They really love each other."

"Yes'm, they does," Cleo agreed. "You settles things well. Other people's troubles, I mean. But—Miss Sara Sue, ma'am—"

"What, Cleo?"

"How 'bout your own love affairs, ma'am? Is you happy your-own self?"

"Uhm. No'm, you ain't. You cain't fool old black Cleo!"

You couldn't indeed, fool old black Cleo. Sagacious, observant, wise in a race-old wisdom that was better than any literacy of the whites, Cleo knew!

"Miss Sara Sue, when you tol' me all about Mistuh Dr. Holgate, ma'am, your eyes just shine all over the place, and have a far-away look in 'em. Tell your ol' colored frien', ma'am, is everything perfectly all right?"

"Certainly, Cleo." The white girl was a trifle embarrassed.

"He a fine looking gentlemun. Calc'lus say he been setting' up to Miss Peaches Pomeroy."

"Yes, he is in love with—why Cleo! That's a secret! Don't you ever mention that to anyone. You hear me?" Sara Sue was astounded at the thought of having broken a confidence.

"You knows I don't tell nothin', nevuh! But that don't mean I dont know nothin'! That ain't all I knows, eithuh."

Sara Sue looked at her cook. "What else do you know, Cleo? I ought to discharge you at once! Maybe I will!"

"No'm you won't. You's my baby, and you thinks a heap of me, and you knows you do, heh-heh. Ah has to keep a close lookout over you, all the time. You knows you ain't talkin' with no stranguh, honey."

Sara Sue knew it, truly. She loved Cleo, in a very real way. No more loyal servant ever lived; no better friend, in her earnest way. Their relationship was not a rare one down south. Sara Sue smiled sweetly at her, feeling almost like a little child, like the baby that Cleo called her.

"Peeples awful proud of you, honey. You see yourself in the paper that day? Law, Miss Sara Sue, ma'am, a million peoples calls here about that! They proud of you. So is we all. And I betcha so is Missuh Professuh Holgate, ma'am."

"He's a real hero, Cleo. He saved two lives, and last night he—"

Husband Wounds Child Bride, Kills Father and Self

15-YEAR-OLD GIRL'S MATE RUNS AMUCK

Secret Marriage of Indiana Man, 39, Ends in Gunfire as Court Separates Pair.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. — (U.P.) — The law separated William Query, 39, from his child bride, Betty, 15. Last night he attempted to coax her to return to him and failed, so he shot and killed her and her father, then committed suicide, Police Chief Clint Seward said.

Query eloped with the girl, daughter of Ralph D. Kendall, 36, a contractor, after a brief courtship which they kept secret from her parents. They were married at Cloverdale, Ind., a week ago after the bride had obtained a license by saying she was 18.

Complains to Judge.

When her mother, Mrs. Minnie Belle Dobson, Greencastle, Ind., learned of the marriage she complained to Judge C. C. Gillen. She said her daughter was too young for marriage. Gillen issued a warrant and police arrested the couple at Cloverdale, Ind., yesterday. Gillen remanded the girl to the custody of her father and released Query under $1,000 bond.

Query appeared at the back door of the Kendall home last night while his bride and her stepmother, Mrs. Margaret Kendall, 30, were washing supper dishes.

She said he came into the kitchen and attempted to coax his bride to return to him.

"Are you ready to go," he asked.

"Don't touch me," Betty replied. "I don't want to go with you."

Kendall entered the room at that moment and told Query to leave. Query drew a .32 caliber pistol and fired twice. One bullet passed through Kendall's heart. Betty ran out a rear door but Query fired two shots before she could get out of range. She fell on the back porch, shot through the chest and neck. Mrs. Kendall escaped through a side door and, as she ran for aid, heard another shot. Police found Query dead beside Kendall, a bullet wound between his eyes.

Seward said Query had been married twice and had worked intermittently at Cloverdale as a Truck driver and clerk.

Previously he had served as a principal and superintendent of schools in Lima, O. He also had been an educator in Sandusky and Mt. Vernon. He began his teaching career in Mercer county in 1899.

As treasurer of the National Education association, Offenhauer became nationally known. He held that post at the time of his death.

WON'T LOSE BY STOCK JUGGLE

Investigators Claim Public Interest Intact in Sisto Brokerage Failure.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Investigators believed today that the public would escape without loss from the account juggling of Broker Joseph A. Sisto, who was expelled from the stock exchange yesterday.

The stock exchange's board of governors had convicted Sisto of violating the rules by buying for the Sisto Financial corporation, which he controlled, 1,000 shares of the corporation's own stock at $23 a share after he had acquired the stock the same day for $15.12 a share. He also was convicted of switching between his personal and trading accounts. He and his partner, J. Davis Cohen, listed on the exchange as J. A. Sisto and Company.

State and federal authorities were conducting separate investigations of the case.

Assistant Attorney General Ambrose McCall disclosed that only about 10,000 shares of Sisto Financial corporation were outstanding among 225 stockholders and its total value was about $50,000.

Sisto issued a statement saying that J. A. Sisto and company had done business only on a cash basis, carrying no margin accounts, and that "in my opinion my conduct was in all respects proper, although the board's interpretation of the rules was otherwise."

CONSIDERS $5 RAIL FARE FOR TRAVEL FROM COAST TO COAST

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Railroad executives met today to discuss "prosperity" proposals as the interstate commerce commission studied a unique relief plan under which a passenger might ride from New York to San Francisco for a basic coach fare of $5.

Chairman Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., of the senate interstate commerce committee requested an opinion from ICC Chairman Walter M. W. Splawn on the feasibility of the "postalization of passenger rates," a proposal made by John A. Hastings, former New York state senator.

Wheeler endorsed Hastings' plan as the board of directors of the Association of American Railroads convened to discuss relief measures suggested by President Roosevelt's special committee on railroads.

Hastings' plan would establish a system of railroad rates roughly similar to parcel post zone rates.

A trip from New York to San Francisco, in which the traveler crosses five zones, would cost at the lowest rate, $5, and for the most expensive accommodations $75.

Wheeler and Chairman Clarence F. Lea, D., Calif., of the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce, who will guide railroad legislation through congress, arranged a conference with the president late this week or early next week at which various relief proposals will be discussed.

Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, D., Ky., said that railroad legislation would be a major item in the administration's program for the new congress.

"We've got to stop talking about the railroads and start acting," he said.

VICE PRESIDENT FAVORS PLAN TO BLOCK POLITICS

Believes Non-Partisan Boards Should be Appointed Free of Administration Aid.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Vice President Garner was described authoritatively today as taking an active part in efforts to give local communities more control over expenditure of WPA funds.

Garner is understood to have told close associates that he believed the problem of keeping politics out of relief could be met at least in part by setting up nonpartisan boards in each county. These boards would examine complaints of political misuse of relief money or discrimination against relief applicants.

He has told his friends, it was learned, that these boards should be purely local agencies, appointed by local officials entirely free from WPA control.

Differs With Barkley.

This view differs sharply from that of Senator Barkley (D. Ky.), who said yesterday he believed that if such boards were set up, they should be appointed by the WPA.

Barkley, the Democratic floor leader, said he never had favored the current practice of having a local certifying agent, appointed by a local official, accept the responsibility for designating those eligible for relief. He said he believed WPA should accept this responsibility.

After hearing of Barkley's statement, Garner conferred with Senator Byrnes (D., S. C.), floor manager for WPA appropriation bills.

Byrnes said later that he had not made up his mind on details of relief legislation. He called a meeting of the senate relief committee for next Wednesday.

Byrnes has said previously that he believes some specific prohibition against political coercion of relief employes would be inserted in the next WPA appropriation bill, he also has been working on a formula by which relief might be apportioned to states according to need, population, area and other factors.

In the house, meanwhile, influential members intimated that the appropriations committee might curb the administration's relief program for the year beginning July 1.

Some legislators talked of letting the committee make a long-discussed investigation of the entire relief set-up, including any political aspects it may have.

Such an inquiry, they said, probably would be delayed until an appropriation to carry relief through June 30 is out of the way.

MRS. WOLFF DIES

FAIR ENOUGH!

Alimony Law Should Work Both Ways If Wife Keeps Her Job After Marriage

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Before I yield any part of my contention that the wives of men who are gainfully employed should not be encouraged to occupy jobs which could be used by unemployed heads of dependent families I must be promised compensating admissions from the ladies.

The ladies, in such cases, must waive their right to alimony or separate maintenance in the event of domestic trouble, and, as a further condition, those with dependent husbands must accept liability for their continued support in case of divorce or legal separation.

This might answer the question "Are women people?" and the equally interesting question "Are husbands people?"

As matters stand, the employed wife of an employed husband is legally entitled to a portion of his earnings in peace or, so to speak, war, but he has not claim on hers. Even though she be the much more capable and independent member of the team, with a salary much higher than his, the law is such that, come woe in their love bower and she checks out or compels him to, she can force him to allot her a weekly allowance from his own inferior pay.

As a matter of justice, women being people and claiming equality with men, the self-supporting wife cannot consistently require financial tribute from a estranged mate whose earnings are no more and may be less than hers.

* * *

For convenience I am waiving the question of the support of the children, if any, proposing that there be an adjustment of that problem on the basis of their disposition. If she takes them, then, of course, he should contribute something for their keep. By no means, however, should the gentleman be compelled to pay anything for the support of the lady in the case, and I would entertain a proposal that, in the absence of children, she be required to pay him a little something every week on the ground that she has permitted him to become accustomed to a scale of living, on their joint earnings, to descend from which would impose a hardship on the male—fifty-fifty.

It is a heartrending experience for an unfortunate husband to find himself suddenly dependent on his own income after some years of luxury on joint earnings, the more so if the wife's pay has been the larger, and still more so if he is ordered to pay a portion of his own poor salary to a lady who during their life together was more than a little scornful of his ability to bring it in.

Yet, so cruel is the law that many males must pay or, in some states, go to jail. The theory seems to be that ladies, having married, are entitled to support and, if legally separated or divorced and legally aggrieved, are entitled to maintenance apart. Here, then, in the law, the ladies are held to be dilettantes in gainful employment, who may quit work or neglect their work and get fired at no risk of legal action for non-support. The husband, however, is obliged to bring it in and may be given serious trouble in court should be just refuse to make the effort.

The unemployed dependent husband of an employed wife presents a slightly different problem. Actually he is a wretched sufferer, miserably conscious of his position, but in the matter of responsibility he is still legally the head man, and his wife is not obliged to work for their support. He eats the bread of charity. And in time she may walk out or devil him with taunts until he is driven out, in which case it is not she but he who is legally expected to support not only himself but her as well.

But what is a man to do in such circumstances? For years, let us say, he has led a secluded, domestic life, his days a round of shopping at the chain store, cleaning, mending and cooking, and he has lost contact with the business world. He is a dependent husband, and if he were a wife would have a legal claim to support, but, being otherwise, may be cast aside to beg odd jobs and live on the cold generosity of relatives.

* * *

In such a situation should not the wife be liable to his support and the women's wing of the alimony jail yawn for ladies who refuse their responsibility as equals and people? But there is no women's wing. The plans of the architects and, some will say, of God himself didn't provide for equality of the sexes in domestic economic responsibility.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Jimmy's got IT.

And I mean the kind of IT that Hollywood talks about, likes, and needs.

James Roosevelt's first official duty—as a vice-president of Samuel Goldwyn, Inc.—was to hold a press conference.

The setting of this little drama was the boss' white-paneled, buff-draperied inner sanctum. For the occasion the "star," a lank lad of 31 with a very familiar smile and comparatively little light brown hair left, was neatly, ungaudily attired in a business suit of purplish tinge, with a dark blue-and-white tie, black shoes. The "supporting cast" of one—the dapper Mr. Goldwyn—was neatly, more gaudily apparent in a small-checked sports suit, with black-and-white shoes. The supporting cast also beamed.

Even if you didn't know that the president's eldest son was a Washington veteran of such affairs, his demeanor would have informed you. After handshakes all around, he moved up front, sat sidewise on Mr. Goldwyn's glass-topped desk, and grinned. Mr. Goldwyn grinned, too, and said, "Gentlemen, here is your victim."

The questions started and Jimmy demonstrated as neat a capacity for answering—or parrying—as Hollywood has seen in years. The first thrust was on his salary. Was it, or wasn't it, as high as $50,000 a year, as reported?

Under that figure, said Jimmy, and then—"and not enough to interest Alva Johnston, either," he added, which brought laughter. (Mr. Johnston, you remember, made Jimmy angry with a piece called "Jimmy's Got It"—and he didn't mean IT.)

And from then on, it was developed that Jimmy expected to spend the first two months in Mr. Goldwyn's New York office, learning the industry's fundamentals; and he couldn't compare this job with his latest—as secretary to his father—because this one had a future and the other was at best "only temporary."

Jimmy is the first Washington celebrity to join the movies since Will Hays left the postmaster-general's office to become the industry's "czar."

What's behind it? Well, Mr. Goldwyn (who incidentally is our most celebrity-conscious producer) said when he met Jimmy it was "love at first sight." He said he felt the industry needed young men like Jimmy, and he expected great things of him. He said he had a five-year contract with Jimmy, but he didn't answer the small voice that said "With options?")

And aside from that, aside from the younger Roosevelt's past successes in business, there's the logical conjecture that right now the movie industry can use a little old-family-and-Harvard tradition as an antidote for the comic-strip version of movie executives with which the public is familiar.

The movie industry wants dignity. Mr. Goldwyn, in particular, admires dignity. In adding James Roosevelt to the roster of movie executives, Hollywood takes on a large order of prestige—along with a sizable amount of personal charm that can make friends for Hollywood—and for Goldwyn.

'No Meal Too Big For Me Now,' Says Well Known Local Man
Retired farmer says before taking Vendol even light foods upset stomach causing gas, bloating, sourness, and other troubles.
The most grateful people, and those who praise Vendol the highest, are those men and women who hadn't been enjoying their meals because they couldn't eat without suffering later. This was the experience of Mr. Ledom L. Oyster, a well known retired farmer residing at 5 Durham Ave., Mansfield, who recently gave the following account of relief to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & Fourth Sts. He says:
For years a bad case of constipation forced me to take a laxative almost every night, and even at that my bowel movements were never really thorough. Here of late this made my digestion go back on me. Regardless of how careful I was in the selection of my foods, I was bound to suffer with indigestion, sourness, smothering gas acid risings, and a terribly bloated feeling. This upset stomach condition brought on other troubles, too. I would have such dizzy spells I could hardly walk without staggering and my head seemed to ache all the time. I didn't know what it was to get a good night's rest, for my sleep was broken so many times during the night, and this made me very nervous.
From the way Vendol helped me it seemed it was made especially for my troubles and soon brought relief from constipation then I got the most wonderful relief I've known in a long time from the other troubles.

MR. LEDOM L. OYSTER
"No meal seems too big for me now, yet, I never have sour stomach gas or bloating. My nerves eased down so that my sleep is restful and I feel better than in a long time. I've been relieved of the dizzy spells and headaches and that tired, listless feeling has left me as well. Vendol was good to me and I feel sure it will help everyone suffering like I did."
You can't go wrong in giving Vendol a chance to help you the same way. Its Roots, Herbs and Alkalines will make you FEEL better and LOOK better. Visit the Vendol Man at the Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & 4th Sts., and learn all about it. Most all druggists sell Vendol.

Husband Wounds Child Bride, Kills Father and Self

15-YEAR-OLD GIRL'S MATE RUNS AMUCK

Secret Marriage of Indiana Man, 39, Ends in Gunfire as Court Separates Pair.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. — (U.P.) — The law separated William Query, 39, from his child bride, Betty, 15. Last night he attempted to coax her to return to him and failed, so he shot and killed her and her father, then committed suicide, Police Chief Clint Seward said.

Query eloped with the girl, daughter of Ralph D. Kendall, 36, a contractor, after a brief courtship which they kept secret from her parents. They were married at Cloverdale, Ind., a week ago after the bride had obtained a license by saying she was 18.

Complains to Judge.

When her mother, Mrs. Minnie Belle Dobson, Greencastle, Ind., learned of the marriage she complained to Judge C. C. Gillen. She said her daughter was too young for marriage. Gillen issued a warrant and police arrested the couple at Cloverdale, Ind., yesterday. Gillen remanded the girl to the custody of her father and released Query under $1,000 bond.

Query appeared at the back door of the Kendall home last night while his bride and her stepmother, Mrs. Margaret Kendall, 30, were washing supper dishes.

She said he came into the kitchen and attempted to coax his bride to return to him.

"Are you ready to go," he asked.

"Don't touch me," Betty replied. "I don't want to go with you."

Kendall entered the room at that moment and told Query to leave. Query drew a .32 caliber pistol and fired twice. One bullet passed through Kendall's heart. Betty ran out a rear door but Query fired two shots before she could get out of range. She fell on the back porch, shot through the chest and neck. Mrs. Kendall escaped through a side door and, as she ran for aid, heard another shot. Police found Query dead beside Kendall, a bullet wound between his eyes.

Seward said Query had been married twice and had worked intermittently at Cloverdale as a Truck driver and clerk.

WON'T LOSE BY STOCK JUGGLE

Investigators Claim Public Interest Intact in Sisto Brokerage Failure.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Investigators believed today that the public would escape without loss from the account juggling of Broker Joseph A. Sisto, who was expelled from the stock exchange yesterday.

The stock exchange's board of governors had convicted Sisto of violating the rules by buying for the Sisto Financial corporation, which he controlled, 1,000 shares of the corporation's own stock at $23 a share after he had acquired the stock the same day for $15.12 a share. He also was convicted of switching between his personal and trading accounts. He and his partner, J. Davis Cohen, listed on the exchange as J. A. Sisto and Company.

State and federal authorities were conducting separate investigations of the case.

Assistant Attorney General Ambrose McCall disclosed that only about 10,000 shares of Sisto Financial corporation were outstanding among 225 stockholders and its total value was about $50,000.

Sisto issued a statement saying that J. A. Sisto and company had done business only on a cash basis, carrying no margin accounts, and that "in my opinion my conduct was in all respects proper, although the board's interpretation of the rules was otherwise."

CONSIDERS $5 RAIL FARE FOR TRAVEL FROM COAST TO COAST

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Railroad executives met today to discuss "prosperity" proposals as the interstate commerce commission studied a unique relief plan under which a passenger might ride from New York to San Francisco for a basic coach fare of $5.

Chairman Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., of the senate interstate commerce committee requested an opinion from ICC Chairman Walter M. W. Splawn on the feasibility of the "postalization of passenger rates," a proposal made by John A. Hastings, former New York state senator.

Wheeler endorsed Hastings' plan as the board of directors of the Association of American Railroads convened to discuss relief measures suggested by President Roosevelt's special committee on railroads.

Hastings' plan would establish a system of railroad rates roughly similar to parcel post zone rates.

A trip from New York to San Francisco, in which the traveler crosses five zones, would cost at the lowest rate, $5, and for the most expensive accommodations $75.

Wheeler and Chairman Clarence F. Lea, D., Calif., of the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce, who will guide railroad legislation through congress, arranged a conference with the president late this week or early next week at which various relief proposals will be discussed.

Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, D., Ky., said that railroad legislation would be a major item in the administration's program for the new congress.

"We've got to stop talking about the railroads and start acting," he said.

VICE PRESIDENT FAVORS PLAN TO BLOCK POLITICS

Believes Non-Partisan Boards Should be Appointed Free of Administration Aid.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Vice President Garner was described authoritatively today as taking an active part in efforts to give local communities more control over expenditure of WPA funds.

Garner is understood to have told close associates that he believed the problem of keeping politics out of relief could be met at least in part by setting up nonpartisan boards in each county. These boards would examine complaints of political misuse of relief money or discrimination against relief applicants.

He has told his friends, it was learned, that these boards should be purely local agencies, appointed by local officials entirely free from WPA control.

Differs With Barkley.

This view differs sharply from that of Senator Barkley (D. Ky.), who said yesterday he believed that if such boards were set up, they should be appointed by the WPA.

Barkley, the Democratic floor leader, said he never had favored the current practice of having a local certifying agent, appointed by a local official, accept the responsibility for designating those eligible for relief. He said he believed WPA should accept this responsibility.

After hearing of Barkley's statement, Garner conferred with Senator Byrnes (D., S. C.), floor manager for WPA appropriation bills.

Byrnes said later that he had not made up his mind on details of relief legislation. He called a meeting of the senate relief committee for next Wednesday.

Byrnes has said previously that he believes some specific prohibition against political coercion of relief employes would be inserted in the next WPA appropriation bill, he also has been working on a formula by which relief might be apportioned to states according to need, population, area and other factors.

In the house, meanwhile, influential members intimated that the appropriations committee might curb the administration's relief program for the year beginning July 1.

Some legislators talked of letting the committee make a long-discussed investigation of the entire relief set-up, including any political aspects it may have.

Such an inquiry, they said, probably would be delayed until an appropriation to carry relief through June 30 is out of the way.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Alimony Law Should Work Both Ways If Wife Keeps Her Job After Marriage

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Before I yield any part of my contention that the wives of men who are gainfully employed should not be encouraged to occupy jobs which could be used by unemployed heads of dependent families I must be promised compensating admissions from the ladies.

The ladies, in such cases, must waive their right to alimony or separate maintenance in the event of domestic trouble, and, as a further condition, those with dependent husbands must accept liability for their continued support in case of divorce or legal separation.

This might answer the question "Are women people?" and the equally interesting question "Are husbands people?"

As matters stand, the employed wife of an employed husband is legally entitled to a portion of his earnings in peace or, so to speak, war, but he has not claim on hers. Even though she be the much more capable and independent member of the team, with a salary much higher than his, the law is such that, come woe in their love bower and she checks out or compels him to, she can force him to allot her a weekly allowance from his own inferior pay.

As a matter of justice, women being people and claiming equality with men, the self-supporting wife cannot consistently require financial tribute from a estranged mate whose earnings are no more and may be less than hers.

* * *

For convenience I am waiving the question of the support of the children, if any, proposing that there be an adjustment of that problem on the basis of their disposition. If she takes them, then, of course, he should contribute something for their keep. By no means, however, should the gentleman be compelled to pay anything for the support of the lady in the case, and I would entertain a proposal that, in the absence of children, she be required to pay him a little something every week on the ground that she has permitted him to become accustomed to a scale of living, on their joint earnings, to descend from which would impose a hardship on the male—fifty-fifty.

It is a heartrending experience for an unfortunate husband to find himself suddenly dependent on his own income after some years of luxury on joint earnings, the more so if the wife's pay has been the larger, and still more so if he is ordered to pay a portion of his own poor salary to a lady who during their life together was more than a little scornful of his ability to bring it in.

Yet, so cruel is the law that many males must pay or, in some states, go to jail. The theory seems to be that ladies, having married, are entitled to support and, if legally separated or divorced and legally aggrieved, are entitled to maintenance apart. Here, then, in the law, the ladies are held to be dilettantes in gainful employment, who may quit work or neglect their work and get fired at no risk of legal action for non-support. The husband, however, is obliged to bring it in and may be given serious trouble in court should be just refuse to make the effort.

The unemployed dependent husband of an employed wife presents a slightly different problem. Actually he is a wretched sufferer, miserably conscious of his position, but in the matter of responsibility he is still legally the head man, and his wife is not obliged to work for their support. He eats the bread of charity. And in time she may walk out or devil him with taunts until he is driven out, in which case it is not she but he who is legally expected to support not only himself but her as well.

But what is a man to do in such circumstances? For years, let us say, he has led a secluded, domestic life, his days a round of shopping at the chain store, cleaning, mending and cooking, and he has lost contact with the business world. He is a dependent husband, and if he were a wife would have a legal claim to support, but, being otherwise, may be cast aside to beg odd jobs and live on the cold generosity of relatives.

In such a situation should not the wife be liable to his support and the women's wing of the alimony jail yawn for ladies who refuse their responsibility as equals and people? But there is no women's wing. The plans of the architects and, some will say, of God himself didn't provide for equality of the sexes in domestic economic responsibility.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Jimmy's got IT.

And I mean the kind of IT that Hollywood talks about, likes, and needs.

James Roosevelt's first official duty—as a vice-president of Samuel Goldwyn, Inc.—was to hold a press conference.

The setting of this little drama was the boss' white-paneled, buff-draperied inner sanctum. For the occasion the "star," a lank lad of 31 with a very familiar smile and comparatively little light brown hair left, was neatly, ungaudily attired in a business suit of purplish tinge, with a dark blue-and-white tie, black shoes. The "supporting cast" of one—the dapper Mr. Goldwyn—was neatly, more gaudily apparent in a small-checked sports suit, with black-and-white shoes. The supporting cast also beamed.

Even if you didn't know that the president's eldest son was a Washington veteran of such affairs, his demeanor would have informed you. After handshakes all around, he moved up front, sat sidewise on Mr. Goldwyn's glass-topped desk, and grinned. Mr. Goldwyn grinned, too, and said, "Gentlemen, here is your victim."

The questions started and Jimmy demonstrated as neat a capacity for answering—or parrying—as Hollywood has seen in years. The first thrust was on his salary. Was it, or wasn't it, as high as $50,000 a year, as reported?

Under that figure, said Jimmy, and then—"and not enough to interest Alva Johnston, either," he added, which brought laughter. (Mr. Johnston, you remember, made Jimmy angry with a piece called "Jimmy's Got It"—and he didn't mean IT.)

And from then on, it was developed that Jimmy expected to spend the first two months in Mr. Goldwyn's New York office, learning the industry's fundamentals; and he couldn't compare this job with his latest—as secretary to his father—because this one had a future and the other was at best "only temporary."

Jimmy is the first Washington celebrity to join the movies since Will Hays left the postmaster-general's office to become the industry's "czar."

What's behind it? Well, Mr. Goldwyn (who incidentally is our most celebrity-conscious producer) said when he met Jimmy it was "love at first sight." He said he felt the industry needed young men like Jimmy, and he expected great things of him. He said he had a five-year contract with Jimmy, but he didn't answer the small voice that said "With options?")

And aside from that, aside from the younger Roosevelt's past successes in business, there's the logical conjecture that right now the movie industry can use a little old-family-and-Harvard tradition as an antidote for the comic-strip version of movie executives with which the public is familiar.

The movie industry wants dignity. Mr. Goldwyn, in particular, admires dignity. In adding James Roosevelt to the roster of movie executives, Hollywood takes on a large order of prestige—along with a sizable amount of personal charm that can make friends for Hollywood—and for Goldwyn.
